Greeks Get Premet, Hit At 2 Bases

Counter-Invasion Attack Made at Dawn Upon Argirocastro, Porto
Edda

Treaty Is Made

Britons Reach Pact
for Increased Trade With Turkey

(By The Associated Press)
Greece's slashing counter-invasion armies hurled dawn attacks today at Porto Edda and Argiro-castro, key Italian bases in southwest Albania, and dispatches from the front said the two cities were about to fall.

The Greeks said that they had already captured Premet, midway along the Balkan war front, and that Premier Mussolini's Fascist legions were in flight from Porto Edda and Argirocastro.

Athens dispatches said the main road from Porto Edda, Italy's sea gateway to southern Albania, was dominated by Greek guns.

The only avenue of escape left open to the Italians, it was reported, was by a tortuous coastal route.

Italy's high command, in its daily war bulletin, said tersely that "attacks and counter-attacks in sectors of two armies took place again," but asserted that the Fascist air force had heavily strafed the advancing Greeks.

"Our formations of bombing planes and dive bombers bombarded military works, highways, bridges, columns of supply trucks and troops on the march in effective actions, in co-operation with land forces," the Fascist communique said.

Here, repeated attacks were centered on the Premet-Perati highway, the communiqué added, cutting the road "at several points" to impede the victorious Greeks.

Dispatches from Athens said the Greeks took Premet, 15 miles inside Albania, in the center of the 100-mile front, after driving the Italians from strongly fortified positions in the Frasheri mountain range north of the town.

Fighting desperately, the Fascists launched a counter-attack with tanks on both flanks of the Greek columns marching up the highway to Premet, but a government spokesman said the Greeks drove off the tanks and the battle ended in an Italian rout.

More than 500 Fascist troops were said to have surrendered.

Athens also expected the fall at any moment of both Porto Edda—the Adriatic seaport named for Mussolini's daughter—and Argiro-castro, Italy's last big war base in southern Albania.

A tribute to the "extraordinary valor" of the Greeks was voiced in England by Home Secretary Herbert Morrison, who declared:

"The example of Greece gives us a reminder that courage, brains and inflexible determination can upset the calculations of a bully as swiftly, as unexpectedly as David with his sling overthrew the clanking champion of the Philistines."

In the war in the west, the German air force ranged widely over Britain again last evening, broke

Proposal Made by Leftists

McGovern Asserts Peace Efforts
Are Not Discreditable; More Raids Like Coventry Are Feared by Laborites Asking Action

London, Dec. 5 (P)—A silent, disapproving House of Commons rejected by an overwhelming vote of 341 to 4, a motion by three members of the Independent Labor Party today that Britain state her war aims and seek peace immediately, "if necessary in a spirit of compromise," because, they said "there is no certainty of a great victory."

The vote followed quickly the presentation of the motion by J. McGovern, Campbell Stephen and James Maxton, all from Glasgow.
Supporting the trio, Samuel Silverman, Liverpool laborite, declared the moment defined by Prime Minister Churchill as the time for the statement of peace aims—"when we have convinced the world of our capacity to survive"—had now arrived.

The authors of the motion are members of the extreme leftist wing of Britain's labor movement.
The four members voting for the motion were Maxton, Dr.
Alfred Salter, laborite, William Gallacher, the only Communist member of Parliament, and David Kirkwood, another laborite. Mc-Govern and Stephen were named tellers, hence could not vote.

Says Move Not Discredited
Declaring that peace efforts are "not discreditable," J. Mc-Govern asserted:

"If the war goes on—as it is likely to do if the forces in operation today have their way without any attempt to end it—until February of next year, I expect that there will be intensive bombing from this country, and if that is so the large reserves which Germany has been piling up will be utilized for the purpose of subjecting every industrial city in this country to a Coventry raid."

Prime Minister Churchill was absent as the three independent Laborites, McGovern, James Max-ton and Campbell Stephen—all from Glasgow—demanded that Britain's war aims be stated and called for "restoration of freedom in every country, the establishment of a new social order which would mean the end of German, British and other Imperialism and provide a decent home and standard of life for each family in every country of the world."

"No opportunity should be lost to end the war," contended Mc-Govern, "if necessary in a spirit of compromise."

Attlee Cites Progress
Before the debate began Clement R. Attlee, Lord Privy Seal, assured the House that "Progress has been made and is being made in solving the problem of night interception (of German bombers), but it is a matter of some complexity and it can only be dealt with gradually."

His statement was made in reply to a demand from Capt. Alec Stratford Cunningham-Reid, a Conservative, that Churchill forbid "optimistic pronouncements concerning methods to frustrate night raiders until practical results are achieved."

McGovern, a member of parliament since 1930, told the house:

"We backed a policy of appeasement because we believed that anything was better than what would happen in war."

He got the only cheers evoked by his statement when he asserted he believed the late Neville

Delegation Makes Plea for More Public Health Nurses in County

Advocating an appropriation for the employment of five county public health nurses, a delegation representing the Ulster County Nursing Committee, appeared before the Board of Supervisors Wednesday evening and asked the board to make an appropriation of $12,000 to carry on the work in the county. Of this sum the state will reimburse the county to the amount of $6,000, making the cost of the five county nurses $6, 000 to the taxpayers of the county.

In the event the board makes an appropriation for the employment of county public health nurses the state will put four additional nurses in the county at no cost to the county to aid in the public health work.

Mrs. Theodore Oxholm of Esopus spoke for the group and at the conclusion of her talk several others spoke briefly of the benefits which would be derived from the plan.

Supervisor Rifkenbary at the opening of the meeting moved that the privilege of the floor be extended to the spokesmen of the group and Mrs. Oxholm elected to speak.

Her talk came following the reading of communications from the Ulster County Pomona Grange; Hurley District, No. 4, P. T. A.; and Ulster Grange, No.
969, P. of H., of Ulster Park, all of which favored the appropriation by the board for county public nurses.

Mrs. Oxholm as spokeswoman for the group of about 20 said that

U. S. Outlay Must Reach 35 Billions

Nation Must Disburse Fund Within Next Five Years to Carry Out Program

Farm Hopes Dim

Agricultural Economists See Little Chance for Farm Help

Washington, Dec. 5 (P)—An expenditure of $35,000,000,000 during the next five years would be required, it was estimated today, to carry out the national preparedness program as now formulated.

This sum is double the amount of appropriations and authoriza-tions made thus far by congress for military defense.

The $35,000,000,000 estimate, the first from official sources projecting defense plans that far into the future, was made by a committee of agriculture department economists in a report entitled
"the impact of the war and the defense program on agriculture."

Rough Estimates
The report stated that it was possible to make only "rough" estimates of the probable magnitude of the defense program at this time. It added, however, that "additional unfavorable developments" in the world political situation might result in the projection of an "even more ambitious program."

"During the five calendar years beginning with 1941 it will require probably about $35,000,000,000 to carry out the defense program as now projected, or around $25,000,- 000,000 in excess of the 1939-40 rate of expenditure (for all government purposes) before the defense program was inaugurated," the report said.

The report was prepared for the agriculture department's program board for use in drafting future farm-aid programs.

It estimated calendar year expenditures for defense purposes for the next five years as follows:
1941, $7,500,000,000; 1942, $9,000,- 000,000; 1943, $7,500,000,000; 1944,
$6,000,000,000; and 1945, $5,000,- 000,000.

Unemployment Cut Seen
The economists predicted that the defense spending together with enlargement of military forces would reduce the nation's unemployment rolls by about one-half between 1940 and 1942.

The economists were not optimistic over the chances of substantial betterment in agriculture's prospects.

"Despite the increase in prices and incomes received by farmers, the situation as a whole does not promise any great improvement in living conditions on the farm,"
they said. "Taken as a whole, it seems quite evident that the prospective situation for agriculture during the next five years, even with material increases in consumer purchasing power, farm prices and incomes, remains rather critical."

The report said farm families engaged primarily in producing cotton, tobacco and some fruits—products for which the war has restricted foreign markets—may receive reduced incomes.

Their Third Thanksgiving
Pottsville, Pa., Dec. 5 (P)—This city of 25,000 in Pennsylvania's anthraxite region took the day off today to give thanks for the third year this year—this time for two new industries established here.

And Mayor Claude A. Lord, who officially proclaimed December 5 as an "extra" Thanksgiving, saw it as personally that those who could not afford the traditional big meal had one anyway. He distributed free 1,000 chickens which he purchased from neighboring farmers. For some, it was the third Thanksgiving in as many weeks. Many here observed President Roosevelt's November 21
"day." Others waited for Gov-nor Arthur H. James' "day" a week later.

Lady Astor Addresses Americans

London, Dec. 5 (P)—In a fighting speech to the Eagle Squadron of American Volunteers in the Royal Air Force, American-born Lady Astor declared today that the "British Empire, backed by the United States, cannot fail."

She predicted that the same 30 American volunteers now training for active service alongside British fliers would be followed by "thousands of others."

"America should know that this is really the greatest hour of trail in the history of the English speaking people," said Lady Astor, a native of Baltimore, Md., her eyes flashing. "They may not know it, but it's their turn next."

Business Men Vote Change in Date

Annual Meeting Will Be Held in January

At the monthly meeting of the Uptown Business Men's Association this morning it was voted to change the date of the annual meeting and the fiscal year for the association will close December 31. Election of officers will take place in January instead of later in the spring as has been the custom in the past.

Vice-president James H. Betts presided at the meeting and named as the nominating committee
James Rowe, A. W. Mollott, Al
Flanagan, Ed. Davey and Phil
Ramsey.

James H. Betts was appointed to attend the Broadway grade crossing elimination hearing at Albany on January 17 as representative of the association.

Many of the local merchants have begun the decorations of their stores and the uptown shopping center is putting on a holiday appearance. There will be no cooperative movement this season to decorate the streets by the association because of the lateness of time when the contractor who submitted bids was able to start the work. However, individual merchants will erect holiday decorations.

Treasury and Export Bank Announce Plan to Help Stabilize Nations' Currencies

Washington, Dec. 5 (P)—The Treasury and Export-Import Bank announced today they were planning a $100,000,000 credit to Argentina.

Secretary Morgenthau said he was considering in the total a $50,- 000,000 credit from the treasury's stabilization fund to stabilize Argentine-United States money.

Warren Lee Pierson, president of the Export-Import Bank, added,
"I'd hate to see the treasury do better than us," when asked how much money the bank would lend Argentina.

These statements came as Pierson and Morgenthau prepared to receive an Argentine financial mission to settle some of the details.

Will Ask More Money
Washington, Dec. 5 (P)—President Roosevelt, it was learned authoritatively today, plans to ask Congress to replenish and possibly enlarge the $200,000,000 special defense fund which was placed at his disposal last spring. Approximately two thirds of the fund has been sent or obligated to date, and numerous agencies were clamoring for the remaining $70,000,000.

Sources close to the White House said that as the defense program picked up speed, more and more occasions were likely to arise when the special fund would be needed, and that even if the original amount were restored it might not be sufficient.

Hull's Aide Tells Plan At Detroit

A. A. Berle, Jr., Tells President's Plan; New Battle in Congress Is Expected

Current Is Object

F. D. R. Says Defense
Works Need Fresh Horsepower

Detroit, Dec. 5 (P)—President Roosevelt announced today he would ask Congress, convening in January, to approve a treaty with Canada providing for completion of the St. Lawrence seaway and power project "on which so much of our national safety and welfare depend."

The President's announcement, presaging another battle in Congress over the long-debated project (defeated in 1934) was made by A. A. Berle, Jr., assistant secretary of state, in an address before the Great Lakes Seaway and Power Conference.

President Roosevelt, in a message to the conference read by Berle, emphasized that the St.
Lawrence project would provide millions in new horsepower urgently needed to speed up defense production and create a safe haven and waterway for construction of ships to replace tonnage sunk in the war.

'Mistaken Opposition'
"The opposition which defeated the St. Lawrence treaty in 1934," Mr. Roosevelt said, "was a mistaken opposition, based on failure to appraise the full needs of their country in the world situation which was even then developing."

"I said then that 'an opportunity is presented to complete a seaway comparable in economic value to the Panama Canal,' a seaway to which the public development of St. Lawrence power is insepar-ably linked."

"It was then an opportunity. It is now a vital necessity."

A commission, named by the United States and Canadian government, is making necessary preliminary surveys for the proposed project, and discussions leading toward a treaty covering the project's construction are under way between the two governments.

Emphasizing the need of the St. Lawrence project for defense, President Roosevelt declared:

"The United States needs this great landlocked sea as a secure haven in which it will always be able to build ships and more ships in order to protect our trade and our shores."

"The United States needs, tremendously needs, the power project which will form a link in the seaway to produce aluminum and more aluminum for the airplane program, which will assure command of the air."

Cites 'Selfish Interests'
The President declared "selfish interests will tell you that I am cloaking this great project in national defense in order to gain an objective which has always been dear to me."

"But I tell you," he declared,
"that it has always been dear to me because I recognized its vital importance to the people in peace and in war."

After delivering the President's message, Berle declared that Canadian power resources already are taxed to capacity for defense needs, and that more power is needed on the United States side of the St. Lawrence for the same urgent purpose. Specifically, he said, there is need for the manufacture of more aluminum at the plants at Massena, N. Y., and of more chemicals at the plants of Union Carbide and other companies in the St. Lawrence valley area.

Describes "Pressure"
The presidential message described defense program "pressure" for "lots of cheap power."

He wrote:
"Let those who oppose the immediate undertaking of this project sit here at the center of the national defense effort in Washington and feel the pressure of the national defense commission calling for more and more power for our great aluminum plants and for other munitions industries requiring lots of cheap power. I am sure that they will know that the opposition which defeated the St.
Lawrence treaty in 1934 was a mistaken opposition, based on failure to appraise the full needs

Mrs. Schall Testifies At Mail Fraud Trial

Los Angeles, Dec. 5 (AP)—Freedom from 25 years of blindness was promised U. S. Senator Thomas D. Schall of Minnesota, his widow testified, after they contributed "hundreds of dollars" to the "I am" movement.

Mrs. Margaret Huntly Schall, a government witness in the federal court mail fraud trial of the organization's leaders, described yesterday how "they told me I could cure him by visualizing some kind of light rays."

"Mrs. Ballard told me," the grey-haired witness declared, "that if I could visualize a ray of light coming down to his head and leaving it at right angles through his eyes, he would be cured. I tried without success."

Accused as Mrs. Edna Ballard, whose late husband, Guy, founded the movement; their son, Donald, and eight others.

Alcatraz to Help

San Francisco, Dec. 5 (AP)—The boys at Alcatraz will do their part in the national defense program even if it isn't very exciting. Warden James A. Johnston ruled that the convicts' bit is to take soiled linen from incoming army and navy transports and send it back fresh and clean. A dozen of the hundred laundry workers, irked by the mountainous piles of incoming linen, staged an informal strike yesterday.

Building Is Damaged

Portland, Me., Dec. 5 (AP)—A cement-block building at the duPont de Nemours box manufacturing plant in suburban Morrill's Corner was badly damaged last night by a fire and several sawdust explosions. None of the 45 men employed nights at the plant was in the building, where shavings are ground into sawdust. No estimate of loss was available and the cause was not determined.

Burial was in Flower Hill cemetery, North Bergen, N. J. The Rev. Hugh Wettstein of Hoboken officiated at the grave.

The funeral of William F. Rafferty, who died at an early hour on Monday, after a long illness, was held from the late home, 48 Tompkins street, this morning at 9 o'clock, thence to St. Mary's Church, where at 9:30 a high Mass of requiem was offered for the happy repose of his soul by the Very Rev. Martin J. Drury, P.R.V.F. Many beautiful floral offerings and numerous Mass cards from sorrowing relatives and friends were placed near the casket. At the Offertory Thomas Dolan sang "O Salutaris" and at the conclusion of the Mass as the body was borne from the church rendered "Ave Maria." Bearers were William J. Geary, James J. Collins, Edward H. Albrecht, William J. Keating, Andrew J. Wrinn and Ernest Brown. The cortege was accompanied to St. Mary's cemetery by the Rev. Joseph C. Connor, who pronounced the final absolution at the grave as the body was laid to rest in the family plot.

Cypress wood was used at funerals by the ancients as an emblem of mourning.

off its attack shortly before midnight and then returned to the assault early this morning.

The midlands and London were the focal points of last night's raids.

The Royal Air Force struck back with raids which the air ministry said were aimed at Duesseldorf, Germany, and sent its bombers ranging over the Alps once more to strike at Italy's northern industrial city of Turin. One British plane did not return.

Treaty Is Made

Britons meanwhile, hailed as a diplomatic achievement a new financial agreement with Turkey which they viewed as a wedge against German efforts to draw the guardian of the Dardanelles into the Axis orbit.

The agreement was expected in London to bring about a considerable increase in trade between Turkey and Britain. Diplomatic circles regarded it as "a direct challenge" to Axis plans for domination of the Balkans as represented by the 10-year trade pact which Germany signed with Rumania yesterday.

Also of interest on the diplomatic front was news from Moscow that Soviet Russia had advised Tokyo her policy toward China would be unchanged by Japan's recognition of Wang Ching Wei's Nanking regime as the Chinese "national government."

New native uprisings were reported in western Cochinchina, province of French Indo-China, which is embroiled with Thailand (Siam). French authorities announced, however, that they had halted "reprisals for Siamese attacks" so that diplomats could try to settle the little kingdom's territorial demands.

Methodists Favor Calendar

Atlantic City, N. J., Dec. 5 (AP)—The Methodist Council of Bishops has approved a proposal to establish a world calendar on which all "roving" holidays would occur the same date each year and all "dated" holidays would fall on the same day of the week each year. For instance, on the proposed calendar Christmas would come on Monday every year, Easter on April 8 (the second Sunday of the month), the Fourth of July on Wednesday, and Labor Day on September 4. The calendar which the Bishops' Council approved yesterday would be composed of a 12-month year as at present. The first months of each quarter—January, April, July and October—would have 31 days each, all others 30. In addition, December would have an extra Saturday at the end which would be a holiday called "December Y." An extra holiday would be added at the end of the second quarter in leap years, designated as "leap year day or June L."

Feels as Jones Does

Washington, Dec. 5 (AP)—Secretary Morgenthau said today that he, like Jesse H. Jones, the federal loan administrator, believed that the British government was a "good risk" for loans. The treasury chief made the comment at a press conference after arranging to meet tomorrow with Sir Frederick Phillips, undersecretary of the British treasury, who arrived in the United States yesterday. Asked when the British would need credits, Morgenthau replied: "If I knew the answer to that question it would not have been necessary for Sir Frederick to have come over."

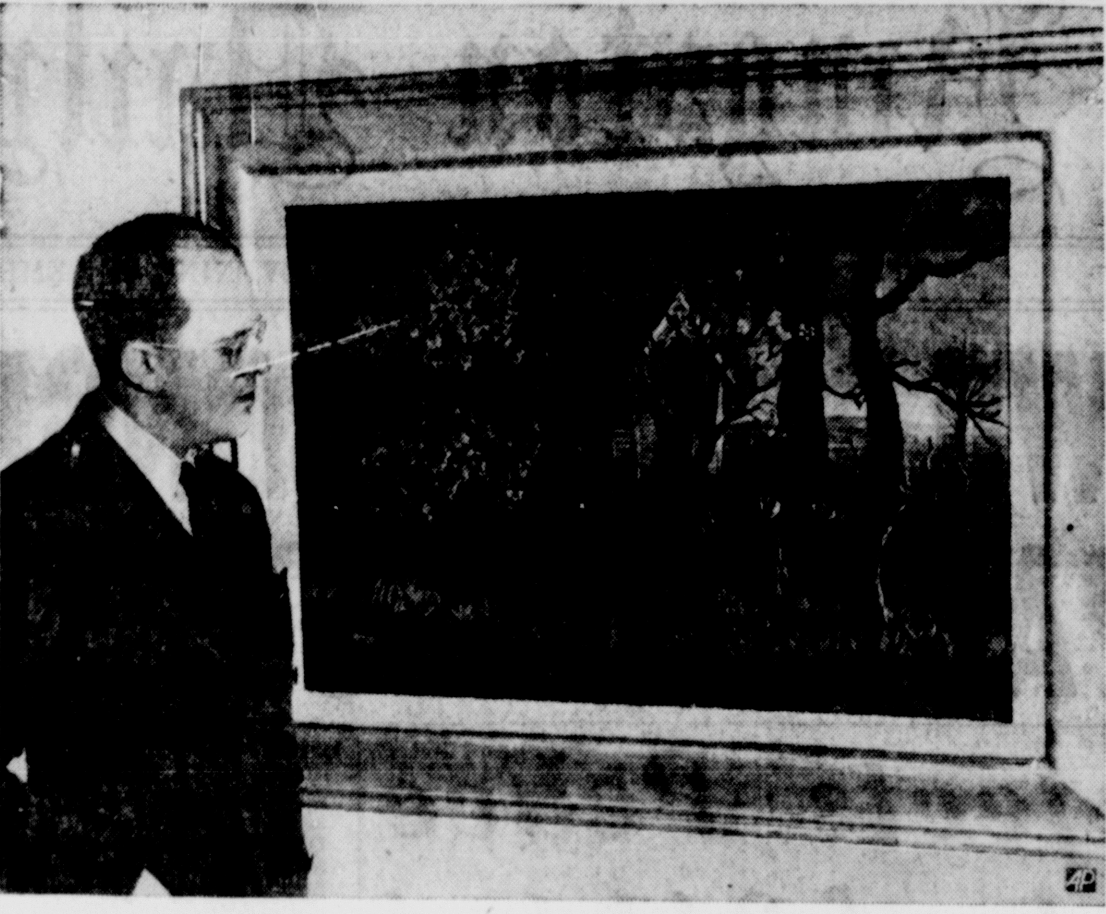

Scenery Explained

In the December issue of the "School Activities" magazine, page 154, there is an article by Sophie Ginzburg Miller, of 93 Broadway, Kingston, called "What Shall We Use for Scenery?" It explains the novel idea for scenery which Sophie Miller created for the opera, "Rebecca at the Well," composed by Rita Maratek, wife of Rabbi Harold Maratek of the Ahavath Israel Congregation of Wurts street and later given at the Temple of Religion in the New York World's Fair.

Men's Club to Meet

The Men's Club of the First Presbyterian Church will hold its regular monthly meeting Friday, December 6 at 8 p. m., in the church hall. Following the regular business meeting a member of the local Emergency Relief Bureau will address the club on social service work in Kingston.

Bundles Appeal Made

The following urgent appeal was received in a telegram this morning from New York city, by Mrs. Myron S. Teller, chairman of the local Bundles for Britain chapter: "In response to requests of our London representative for greater quantities of clothing and all relief supplies, will you make every effort to step up all of your branch. The needs created by the recent increased bombings make it imperative that we, as a leading, independent, American relief organization, meet the call."

Governor Returns

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 5 (AP)—Governor Lehman, back today from a California vacation, plunges immediately into the pressing task of translating state defense needs into lawmaking and financing recommendations for a Republican-controlled 1941 legislature. Many of the steps to integrate state preparedness with national defense already have been taken but necessitate appropriations.

Brazil produces more coffee than all the other countries in the world combined.

George Kelder Hurt in Crash

Main Street Resident's Car Collides With Train in City Today

George Kelder, 58, of 3 Main street, suffered slight injuries shortly after 10 o'clock this morning when the sedan he was driving was in collision with a freight train on the Murray street crossing of the Catskill Mountain Branch of the New York Central Lines.

The front end of the automobile was damaged and Kelder was thrown forward against the steering wheel and complained of pains in his stomach.

Following the crash Mr. Kelder reported the accident at police headquarters in the city hall. The locomotive was in charge of Engineer Baker and the train in charge of Conductor Harry Low.

At the time of the crash Mr. Kelder was driving on Murray street in the direction of Delaware avenue.

Pathway to Horse Meat Dates to Pagan Rituals

Humanitarian reasons keep many from taking any animal food. Others, considering meat merely "second-hand vegetables," prefer to take their nutrients "direct." And many are convinced that a fruit, vegetable, nut and grain diet is really scientifically superior. But why do Americans in general devour such large quantities of meat from cows, lambs, swine, and other animals, yet shrink from eating horses? Why do they shudder at the horse-meat butcher shops of France?

"So far as natural qualities go, horse-meat is little if at all inferior to beef," declare Smithsonian institute investigators. "Various races have eaten it habitually. It formed the principal food of Huns and Mongols. Tartars also ate it."

These scientists find that "the feeling of repugnance . . . arose in a curious way," and offer an explanation.

"Before Europe's conversion to Christianity, horse-meat was much eaten at religious festivals held in honor of old pagan gods. Because of associations with heathenism, early Christian missionaries forbade its use as 'meat offered to idols.' Hence people gradually came to feel that there must be something repulsive in horse-meat itself, and many still have this feeling without in the least knowing why."

Diamonds Stud Beaches In South Africa Colony

The sandy shore of South West Africa is literally studded with diamonds. Along the 850-mile coast, for 30 to 80 miles back from the Atlantic, there is a dreary waste of undulating sand and shifting dunes, but this miniature coastal Sahara is the country's jewel box.

Near here, in 1908, German railroad workmen discovered diamonds. The gems are supposed to have been washed up by the sea. Dredges also bring them up off shore.

In 1934 these sands gave up $5,710,500 in diamonds; in 1935 more than twice that sum; in 1936 almost three times the 1934 amount.

These otherwise barren beaches yield about one-fifth of the world's annual supply. The gems are small but brilliant and of good quality. Half the country's revenue is paid by the diamond output.

The sand hills from which the jewels are "mined" vary in height from 20 to 100 feet along the coast, and rise to 300 and 400 feet three miles inland. Those protected with a sparse growth of vegetation do not shift, but others often move as much as five feet on a stormy day.

Age, Not Youth, Serves So this is the much-heralded age of youth, is it? This statement may be correct, but back in Washington, D. C., it is not youth that is serving the country, but gray-beards, who have and are continuing to shape the destinies of our nation, meaning our senators and representatives in congress. About 40 members of congress are under 40—not a single member of the cabinet is under 40—no generals or admirals under 40—and yet these oldsters who have about 10 years of activity left govern and guide half of our people who have 30 to 60 years of activity left. As one writer puts it, it might be less costly to pension members of congress after a term or two. This would eliminate their endless struggle and scheming for re-election. Surely their thoughts and their worries are not about what sort of a world this will be after 1960.

A flippant answer by some boys to a stranger started a "Courtesy Club" in a little village in Missouri, back in 1937, and from this beginning by a humble farmer, "courtesy clubs" have sprung up in many localities in the Middle West and threaten to spread to every state in the Union.

The farmer who observed this impoliteness on the part of the boys was A. Harry Orr, 65, of near Mt. Leonard, Mo. Wondering what he could do to make the boys and girls of his town more courteous, he arrived at the idea of a courtesy club for rural boys and girls. He talked it over with others and arrangements were made to hold a contest for all between the ages of 10 and 18. No one could enter and no one could keep out of the contest, as the prizes of $10 each for the boy and girl were for a whole year's supply and not for just one outstanding act of courtesy.

And soon there was a noticeable pickup in politeness. More politeness on the sidewalks, in schoolyards, on party telephones, more politeness everywhere. It began to filter up from the boys and girls. Older people began to take pride in being "nice" to each other.

The contest was so successful that Mr. Orr has written into his will enough money to keep it going. And now other cities have picked up the idea and new contests for rural boys and girls are being started—all inspired by the farmer who saw an act of impoliteness and thought he would see if something couldn't be done about it.

Britain Tries to Check Evil of 'Bottle Parties'

LONDON.—Drinks are served without food until 2 a. m. in a well-known public cafe in Piccadilly. This is the government's first subtle move against the dozens of "within the law" bottle parties operated to fleece soldiers on leave.

The cafe can accommodate 2,000 men. It has always been open all night and drinks could be served with meals until midnight. Now they can be served without a meal or even a sandwich until two o'clock. It is hoped by this means to provide a place for the soldiers wandering in the blackout to go where they can have music and a drink and food if they want it, and save them from being roped in by bottle parties.

Laws on Minimum Pay Penned 5,000 Years Ago

CHICAGO.—University of Chicago scientists report that such present-day laws as legislation fixing minimum wages and price levels were born in the minds of Babylonian economists who preserved their "Congressional Records" for posterity in the form of hieroglyphic inscriptions.

That would make such laws 5,000 years old, the scientists said in their recent report on the subject.

Los Angeles—The aircraft industry has expanded "far beyond anything the government has asked us to do and will be capable of meeting the schedules laid down by the government," Arthur Nutt, president of the Society of Automotive Engineers, told that organization's national aircraft production meeting in Los Angeles recently. Mr. Nutt pointed out that the power of American airplane engines is ahead of that of the rest of the world. In the past 10 years, he stated, power has been doubled and trebled, although engines themselves have remained the same size.

New York, Dec. 5 (AP)—Distress calls from three ships were picked up by Mackay Radio within eight hours today as a storm over the North Atlantic added to dangers in an area not far from where submarines have been playing havoc with shipping. DECEMBER TRAFFIC DEATHS

The National Safety Council appeals to drivers and pedestrians throughout the nation in an effort to cut down the heavy December traffic toll.

Last year 3,540 persons were killed in December traffic. All this year highway deaths have been running ahead of last year. This means, the council says, that the nation will pile up one of its biggest holiday traffic tolls unless drivers carry the Christmas spirit onto the highways and pedestrians do their part by being extra careful.

Why does December invariably bring one of the heaviest traffic tolls—more than one and a half times as great as June, the safest month?

The council blames bad weather, more hours of darkness and the Christmas holiday rush. To thwart these traffic bugaboos, it suggests:

Don't drive if you drink.

Balance more darkness and bad weather with less speed and more caution. Start earlier.

Don't let the hustle and bustle of the holiday season make you impatient or careless when you drive or walk. Take it easy.

In addition to appealing to drivers and pedestrians, the council is taking its campaign straight to governors, motor vehicle administrators and highway patrol chiefs, to mayors and police chiefs and to thousands of safety leaders.

"We hope everyone will enlist in this campaign to reduce traffic tragedy during the holiday season," said Col. John Stilwell, president of the council. "Certainly there is no better way of expressing the Christmas spirit than by sparing others the grief of a traffic accident. No one can have a happy Christmas if he has an accident."

JUST QUARRELS

"Thrice armed is he that hath his quarrel just" says one of Shakespeare's characters, and it is as true of a nation as of an individual. The better the cause, the better you may expect the fighting to be. And what a nation is fighting for can't be kept secret forever from the fighting men or the people at home.

The British and the Greeks have fought so bravely because they had big things to fight for, chief among which was liberty—the right to be their own bosses, to follow their own way of life and to pass on their own virtues and treasures to their children. These happen to be, in general, about the same things that Americans, whatever their ancestry, would fight for.

Some interesting examples of this principle may be seen as the war goes on. The Italians, as might easily be concluded from their behavior in the Greek campaign, haven't much faith in that particular quarrel. But who can doubt that they would do a good job if their own country were invaded?

Interesting and reassuring ideas turn up if this general line of thought be followed a little farther. Notice how many nations, suffering or fearing aggression, and having clear consciences themselves, seem to be bristling up lately.

Are we wrong in thinking we see the aggressors acting with less assurance all along the line? Some observers say the German people are wearying of the war. Are they losing faith in the justice of their quarrel with their neighbors? And the great Hitler himself, the unbeatable, who now hesitates and postpones—is it conscience or fear which is interfering with his world conquest?

ATLANTIC AXIS

Speaking of that Continental "Axis," how about our own? It should be clear by this time that there is now one to match it extending across the Atlantic, with one end based on England and the other on North America. It might be called the Atlantic or the British-American Axis, and we'll probably be hearing about it from now on.

The only advantage possessed by the European Axis is that it got itself started first. For a while it seemed very formidable, with what appeared to be a triple alliance of Russia, Germany and Italy, plus the small, capitive nations that Hitler annexed. But by this time Russia is quietly minding her own business and Italy, thanks mainly to the Duce's rash Greek adventure, is likely to be of little more use to Germany. So Hitler's wonderful Axis is now virtually a self-contained unit within the mind of Adolf Hitler himself.

There was a grand flourish recently about taking Japan in, but that country's is now generally recognized as too weak and too far away to be of much use to any European outfit of military gangsters.

But this British-American Axis, which takes in Canada, South Africa, Australia and the rest of the British Empire, is the real thing. It has power and a clear conscience, and a noble mission to save itself and restore peace and decency to the world.

SOAP OPERA

The daytime radio serial has acquired a generic name. The sobbing ladies are said to take part in "Soap Operas." This is probably because the plots aren't much more important than those of most operas, there's a lot of sadness in them and they are apt to advertise soap.

It isn't the name which is of prime interest, however. It is the fact that in polls now being conducted in various places, housewives are saying that they don't care much for them. The average lady at home likes an occasional good continued story. But she puts the accent on the good. She likes an interesting book review now and then, a travel talk, a news broadcast. She will listen to an occasional home economics lesson if it is done briskly and clearly, without too much flubdub. She is tired of heavy commercialism, and the thing she likes above everything else is good music.

Music need not be heavy, but it must be good. The emphasis throughout is on the quality of the entertainment. Light, bright music which keeps her on her toes while doing her housework is tops. It keeps her cheerful and helps her get things done.

There's no doubt about the Greeks getting to first base—and to any other base the Italians try to set up.

Another good thing about vitamins: they may yet save the alphabet.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

PNEUMONIA PREDISPOSES TO LATER ATTACKS

When certain ailments attack us, our blood and tissues build up a resistance with which to fight the ailment. Nature is so good to us that the amount of resistance we build up during the attack remains with us for months, years, in fact our whole lifetime and so we are never attacked by that ailment again. This is spoken of as setting up an "immunity" against that particular ailment.

There is one ailment, however, that once it attacks us, we never seem to build up enough resistance or immunity to prevent a second attack. In fact, one attack makes us more likely to have further attacks. This ailment is pneumonia.

The organisms that cause the different type of pneumonia are always in us, always lying in wait to overcome us should our resistance become low. Further, pneumonia is usually present during the cool or cold weather, when the warm sunlight is not present to fight these organisms and when our own fighting cells—the white corpuscles of the blood—are not at their best because cool weather or coldness chills them and makes them less active. That coldness or drafts is an important factor in chilling the white corpuscles and allowing harmful organisms to make headway in the body has been known for a long time. For years, baseball pitchers have been putting on a sweater between innings or putting the sleeve of their sweater over their pitching arm to prevent cold and stiffness interfering with the strength and elasticity of their muscles and to prevent developing a cold from becoming overheated.

If, then getting overheated and exposing one's self to a cold or a draft will cause a cold which is the beginning part of pneumonia, the lesson is plain. Workers should not hurry out from factories or minutes after work, particularly if they have taken a hot shower to remove dust and dirt from their bodies. The same applies to those engaged in sport, particularly golfers who hurriedly dress after the shower, jump into their cars and hurry home to be in time for the evening meal.

The fact that colds seem to be "catching" in an office, school, or factory but pneumonia is not catching, would tend to show that it is a tired, rundown body, exposed to colds or drafts, that causes the ordinary cold to go on to pneumonia.

The Common Cold

The common cold is the ailment most commonly neglected and yet it may lead to most serious complications such as broncho-pneumonia and pneumonia. Send today for Dr. Barton's helpful booklet entitled "The Common Cold" (No. 104) which contains many useful suggestions. Address your request to The Bell Library, Post Office Box 75, Station O, New York, N. Y., enclosing ten cents to cover cost of handling and mailing and mention the Kingston Daily Freeman.

A LETTER TO UNCLE SANTA

Literary Guide

By JOHN SELBY

"From Thirty Years With Freud."

By Theodore Reik

Now comes one of the best, as well as one of the least assuming, books on Sigmund Freud. "From Thirty Years With Freud" is by Theodore Reik, who first went to Freud from the classroom of Herr Professor Friedrich Jodl, one of the Master's most critical colleagues, and having knocked at the door—never left him in spirit.

But what makes Reik's book useful is not the fact that for thirty years he sat at Freud's feet, but the more important fact, that through those years he did not offer blind obedience to his teacher, and his teacher did not require it of him. Their relationship seems to have been one of mutual criticism in an atmosphere of complete trust. Obviously such an attitude rests upon a basis of belief; Reik was from the beginning convinced that Freud "knew." His latest book is proof enough.

Freud was not anxious to have his disciples make a legend of him, Reik declares. He was human, and had his weaknesses. He was rooted, Reik says, in the common black earth which holds all our roots—only it happened that he grew taller than most of us. He loved well, but he hated just as well. He tried hard to suppress his desire for vengeance upon those who were unjust, and he sometimes failed. "Men are a wolf pack," Reik heard him say in his old age. "Just a wolf pack." The pupil saw Freud really angry only once, however. The only signs were a sudden pallor, and a savage bite at his cigar.

He was human enough to resent the fact that Vienna denied him official recognition, but he only joked about it. He was not, Reik says, vindictive. But neither would he forget injuries. His impulse to knowledge was stronger than his desire to heal. His self-control was enormously developed, and he found outlet for his impatience in wry jokes. He was a great stylist in a literary sense, yet he was not an orator—he liked to speak without notes, quietly, lucidly, as if he were thinking out for the first time the ideas he expressed. But whereas, Reik thinks, a "born orator" makes a great impression at the moment and the impression fades away, Freud's lectures grew greater in the mind of his hearers as time passed.

And so on. Reik's book contains many memories of Freud, several essays written as birthday presents to the master, much peripheral comment of value. And it is written quietly and in polished prose, very well translated.

WOODSTOCK

Woodstock, Dec. 5.—Mrs. Charles Stratton is reported ill.

The Ontario Ministerial Association conducted services in the Methodist Church Tuesday, and about 20 ministers who are members of the society came from a number of towns to attend. The morning service was at 11 o'clock and the sermon was preached by the Rev. Mr. Schuker, of Phoenixia. At the afternoon session the devotion service was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Divine of Ashokan. A vocal solo was given by Mrs. Divine. The subject for the afternoon was "The Use of Music in Public Worship." The speaker was James Russell of Ashtad.

The Rev. Mr. Russell is well known here as a number of his relatives reside in Woodstock.

The towns represented here were Phoenixia, Walden, Hunter, Kingston, Ashland, Pine Hill, Cornwallville, Ashokan and Saugerties. A dinner was served by the ladies of the church.

The San Francisco earthquake and fire caused damage estimated at $250,000,000.

Washington Daybook

By Jack Stinnett

Washington—In spite of the Dies committee reports and the statements of the Department of Justice and the Federal Bureau of Investigation, a lot of folk, official and unofficial, are taking the "fifth column" with two grains of salt and a snuff.

Not so with the War and Navy Departments. Thousands of civilian employees, newsmen and non-uniformed officers who daily hang their hats in the long, low War and Navy buildings, that stretch for blocks along Constitution avenue are having their pictures taken. Before long their coat lapels and blouses will bloom with buttons, showing their photographs and business identifications.

The fire in the War Department building a few weeks back has been officially written off as accidental, but it did put heat under the precautionary program. Not only will all employees have to report with their identifying badges in place, but visitors to the buildings, whether pleasure or business bent, will be escorted by armed guards to the offices on which they are calling.

Uniforms Snack of War

An alternative, in the case of the officers in civies, would be to put them back in uniform, an order which the War and Navy Departments hesitate to issue because it always is considered the final sign that peace is over and war is at hand. It has been done before and in each instance Washington takes on a martial air which would be all out of proportion for a nation at peace.

Although General Pershing is one of the most confirmed believers in the morale value of spic and span uniforms at the close of World War I, he over-rode his reluctance and waited no longer than necessary to order men stationed in Washington back into civies.

While officers in uniform are not difficult to identify, there's a pretty generous penitentiary sentence waiting for men impersonating an officer of the armed forces. The mere unauthorized wearing of a uniform is proof enough.

Nevertheless, military men stationed here are not going back into uniform for the present. Like the civilian employees, they'll report every morning at the Army and Navy beehives with their badges in place, or get held up until they are properly identified.

White House Again Open

The Capitol is under the heaviest guard in years. Although visitors are not asked for identification, the least suspicious actions or the carrying of dangerous looking packages is likely to result in a polite but firm questioning.

In front of the Capitol, where the great inaugural stand is being constructed for the event of January 20, there's a constant day and night guard. The construction work and the Capitol, from sub-basement to dome, are searched almost daily.

Nobody here is pooch-pooching this vigilance but it certainly is being duplicated at the other end of Pennsylvania avenue. The White House grounds, closed a few weeks ago, again are open to visitors, as in the White House. Guards remain at every gate and every turn, but the official family and residence are hardly any more inaccessible than when the world was at peace.

Most White House employees have been fingerprinted. So have some of the White House newspaper correspondents, but that was started two years ago and it always has been voluntary with the individuals.

Roosevelt, Outside of Solid South, Did Not Stack Up Too Imposing a Plurality Over Willkie

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Dec. 5.—The official count in the last Presidential election is almost complete and the tally thus far shows that outside of the ten states in the solid south, President Roosevelt's plurality was 2,490,938.

Out of the 49,366,313 ballots cast for the two major party candidates, Mr. Roosevelt received 27,043,427 and Wendell Willkie 22,322,886 in all 48 states. If the ten states in the solid south are omitted, the total Roosevelt vote was 23,807,903 as against the Willkie vote of 21,316,965.

This differential of less than 2,500,000 votes in the 38 states outside the solid south out of a 50,000,000 vote election is one of the most remarkable in history. For when one examines the variations from section to section and from tradition to tradition, there is hardly any explanation for the way one state behaves as compared with another.

Thus the official count for Kansas shows Willkie to have been the victor by a plurality of 124,444 yet four years ago Governor Landon, the Republican nominee who hailed from Kansas City, lost that state by 66,793 to President Roosevelt. The state of Maine, however, which four years ago gave Landon 42,490 majority, was carried by Willkie this year by a majority of only 7,473—perhaps the smallest in any Presidential election in many years.

Just why Kansas should be overwhelmingly Republican this time and Maine, a normal Republican state, should show such a sharp loss is something which the analysts of the election of 1940 will be discussing, but hardly explaining for many years to come. There have been reports that Maine's result was affected by the presence of a large number of French-Canadians and other foreign-born who cast their ballots on the theory that more aid to Britain would come through Mr. Roosevelt than through Mr. Willkie. But inasmuch as there is a secret ballot, nobody can tell exactly how the foreign-born registered their votes.

The tally in Illinois is interesting as a reflection of the closeness of the race in some parts of the middlewest. Thus out of a total of 4,197,174 votes cast, the Roosevelt majority was 102,694, but in the state of 1,211,170 votes cast, Mr. Willkie won by a majority of 53,520.

This will be commented on no doubt as being the difference between a semi-agricultural state in which there is a metropolis like Chicago and an agricultural state with smaller cities, for there is no doubt that the bulk of the majority of the President was obtained in the large cities. Recently or dying. One of the survivors was reported in a critical condition.

J. H. Herlihy, vice president in charge of operations for the line, scouted the theory that ice formation on the wings might have caused the crash. He said that pilots are required to radio reports of icing and that none had been made by the plane crew.

Findings Withheld

Investigators for the Civil Aeronautics Authority withheld announcement of their preliminary findings.

The dead:

Capt. Philip C. Scott, 34, Chicago, the pilot.

First officer George S. Young, 30, Oak Park, Ill., the co-pilot.

Stuart W. Moore, U. S. Ordnance Engineers, Cleveland.

Wilbert J. Austin, 64, Cleveland, president of the Austin Company, a firm of industrial engineers and builders.

Miss Jane Selby, 27, Akron, O., employee of a Chicago candy company.

Lee F. Haneline, 38, Downers Grove, Ill., eastern division superintendent of reservations, United Air Lines.

Keller F. Melton, 40, Chicago, WPA safety engineer.

Charles W. Manville, 38, Cleveland, general sales manager National Refiners' Company.

Manville and Melton, both of whom suffered fractured skulls and other injuries, died early this morning in Holy Cross Hospital.

Injured Persons

The injured persons are:

Stewardess Florence M. Little, 23, Chicago, basal skull fracture, internal injuries.

Owen M. Frederick, 52, (4888 Porter Road), Olmstead, Ohio, civilian engineer employed at Cleveland by the U. S. Army, fractured shoulder, broken nose and jaw.

George Haig, 45, partner in the Haig and Francisco firm, photographic advertisers, Dayton, O., fractured arm.

Paul Egan, 40, Cleveland, president, National Refiners Company, leg and head injuries.

Rolliston G. Woodbury, 41, (55 Madison avenue), New York city, vice president, Textile Banking Company, fractured leg, scalp wound and lacerations of hands.

Theodore F. Paulsen, 40, Wilmette, Ill., department head, Montgomery Ward and Co. Fractured skull, nose and leg.

Leo Wolans, 37, Chicago contractor, fractured collarbone.

Richard R. Pettie, 26, Boston, Calif., and New York attorney, fractured spine and ribs, concussion of brain.

The flight began at New York and stops were made at Philadelphia, Akron, O., and Cleveland. Dissatisfied with the performance of one motor, Capt. Scott was given another plane at Cleveland to which crew and passengers were transferred.

A light snow was falling when the plane reached Chicago. Weather reports put the ceiling at 1,200 feet and visibility at one mile. Planes had been landing in routine fashion.

The airliner circled the airport for 28 minutes awaiting landing orders from the traffic control tower. It headed in from the south-east after getting clearance orders and co-pilot Young radioed that the ground could be seen.

Richard Rocas, an employee at the airport, said the plane was making a "perfectly normal" approach to the field when suddenly the motors roared as if the pilot tried to attain height.

Nose Dips Down

"The plane's nose dipped down and it turned slightly to the left," he said. "Then it hit the ground and broke into flames."

The first passenger able to tell of the accident was Woodbury, who said:

"The ship circled the airport for some minutes. All I remember about the smashup is that the wing tilted, there was a crash, a woman screamed and I lost consciousness."

Woodbury asserted that there was no sign of anything at fault with the plane as it circled the airport.

George Koukourian, 60, was eating dinner in the kitchen of the bungalow when the plane carried away part of the gable. He was showered with pieces of ceiling plaster. The chandelier tumbled to the floor.

Minnesota Hockey star, captaining the 1923 team. He was married and had one child, a two-year-old boy. Officer Young had been flying United's New York-Chicago route for about a year.

Austin was enroute to Los Angeles on business, members of his family said at Cleveland. In 1924 he became president of his firm, builder of some of the nation's largest industrial plants. He was survived by his widow and three children.

The crash was the third fatal accident on commercial airlines in the past four months. A Pennsylvania central airplane fell near Lovettsville, Va., last August 31, killing 25. Ten died when a UAL plane struck a Utah mountainside November 4.

Vice President Herlihy said that the crash was the second in the company's 10 years of operation on the Cleveland-Chicago route, during which 55,000 trips have been flown.

A. L. Brodie, Cook county coroner, announced he would impale a jury of technical experts for an inquest today.

Something on the Ball

Baseball was about 30 years old before baseball pitchers learned how to put something on the ball. Soon freak deliveries like the fadeaways, spitballs, emery balls, shine balls, fingernail balls and knuckle balls were wrecking batting averages on every diamond in the country. Science accomplished this. University professors demonstrated that it was all a matter of air pressure. When you throw a ball without any spin, the air is churned up behind it and suddenly creates pressures one way or another that put the ball off its course. Throw the ball forward with a spin and one side of the ball is turning backward and the other side is turning forward. In other words, a spinning ball follows its nose. If the nose is spinning to the left, the ball curves left; if down, it causes a drop and if up, it curves upward.

Curb Disease In Modern War

Six That in the Past Took Heavy Toll Said to Be Under Control.

WASHINGTON—Six of the diseases which in past great wars have taken more lives than bullets have appeared in Europe's present battle areas.

But to date each has been stopped, with apparently fair chances it may not spread to dangerous proportions, according to information gathered by the Associated Press.

The explanations, promising something new on the good side in war, come from physicians of England, Germany, Switzerland and France. Most of the examples of the German cleanup of battlefields come from Switzerland.

The diseases so far reported are flu, cerebrospinal meningitis, typhus, typhoid, smallpox and dysentery.

These reports were gathered after American physicians had suggested it is unusual and perhaps significant that after a year of war no great epidemics have been reported.

Situation in Britain.

Influenza and cerebrospinal meningitis are the only infectious diseases which have risen in England in the present war. Better housing, better food and improved preventive measures are expected to hold even those two in check.

"I think," a medical official explained, "we are safe in predicting there will never be in this war an influenza epidemic similar to those of 1918 and 1919."

"A third of the population has been rehoused since 1918 in cleaner, more sanitary dwellings."

"Another factor working against disease is the large supply of food. In 1918, when influenza struck, it found a mighty ally in malnourishment. Don't forget we then had 2½ years of blockade."

Cerebrospinal meningitis, this official said, is now treated with the new drug sulfanilamide. This has cut its death rate from as high as 90 per cent, down to 20, and in some hospitals to 10.

British medical and scientific journals have commented on the surprise when evacuated children failed to develop epidemics. Three of the principal worries, measles, whooping cough and diphtheria, actually dropped.

Statement From Germany.

German physicians on the heels of the German army have operated so efficiently that up to now the usual war epidemics have not occurred.

An authoritative spokesman said today occupied territories received special consideration. The Scandinavian lands, Holland, Belgium and France, he said, gave comparatively little concern to medical authorities, but Poland, where typhus is endemic, furnished a "field day for medical authorities."

Germans there encountered conditions which medical authorities describe as primitive. Doctors who followed the army into Poland required almost universal compulsory vaccinations. Hundreds of medical centers were set up for mothers and babies, often in kindergartens.

This authority declared the parts of Poland under German domination are healthier today than a year ago. He said that while the army medical service gives some attention to civilian emergencies, the military is entirely separate from the Reich's public health service and leaves general problems to public health officials.

French and foreign health experts who have traveled through occupied areas of France say German military and French civil and military doctors have saved France from epidemics, and perhaps plagues, under worst conditions of civilized times.

Science Speeds to Aid;

Mother Saves Daughter

PASADENA, CALIF.—Three-year-old Judith Ewing was strangling on a piece of candy lodged in her throat. The fire department was telephoned and the inhalator rescue squad was dispatched to her home. The city ambulance also sped to the rescue. But before they arrived, Judith's mother took the child by the heels, shook her upside-down and out came the candy.

Trans-Isthmian Highway

Soon to Become Reality

PANAMA CITY, R. P.—The much discussed trans-Isthmian highway connecting Panama City and Colon, Pacific and Atlantic terminal cities, will soon become a reality.

The highway will be of twofold importance in that it will serve as an economic boon to the Republic of Panama and will also be of great importance as a military highway.

Perfect New Method of

Harnessing Radium Rays

WASHINGTON.—Radium since its discovery has saved thousands from lingering death of cancer and has also proven one of the most difficult of elements that doctors and scientists have had to handle.

The bureau of standards in Washington announces perfection of two new portable hospital instruments which measure and warn against too large a dosage of radium's powerful rays.

Industrial Survey Shows 5,058 Are Employed in City

Increase of 902 Persons Employed Since May of This Year in City Survey Indicates

A survey of 56 of the city's industries, which has just been completed by the Kingston Industrial Bureau, shows that there are 5,058 persons employed in the city. The figures show an increase of 902 persons employed since May of this year when an industrial survey was made by the bureau.

Figures compiled by the survey show that there are 1,457 skilled men at work in Kingston, and 1,570 skilled women. The unskilled workers numbered 1,492 men and 273 women. The administrative departments of the industries surveyed employ 183 men and 83 women.

An interesting feature of the survey shows that in a nine-months period, from May until November, there has been an increase of employment in the city.

The survey also discloses that Kingston's industrial plants, including the plants manufacturing shirts, cigars and dresses, employ 3,132 males and 1,926 females. There are 1,206 more men than women employed in industry in Kingston, according to the survey figures.

The industrial survey was made by the Industrial Bureau to assemble and classify information needed by the National Defense Council. The survey was devoted exclusively to the industrial plants as they were the ones which would be the most likely to be awarded war orders in the nation's vast preparedness drive.

The total employment of both skilled and unskilled workers of more than 5,000 persons as shown by the survey does not include the men employed on the New York Central railroad lines.

In Kingston the railroad employs total 450, while in Ulster county, outside the city, the number employed is 620, according to the survey figures.

The cigar, shirt and dress factories in the city are employing approximately 1,600 men and women, the survey showed, while approximately 500 men are employed on the local brickyards and a similar number on the boat yards.

The survey also stated that the skilled men at work were outnumbered by the unskilled by 35, but the skilled women employed outnumbered the unskilled women by 1,297.

While the number of persons employed in the industries of Kingston were being numbered the survey also included the number of available factory buildings.

The survey indicated Kingston needed buildings specially constructed to house modern manufactures. There was plenty of available land along the railroad tracks in Kingston on which suitable buildings could be erected, having plenty of room not only for the buildings but also for extending private railroad switches from the main tracks of the railroad into the plants.

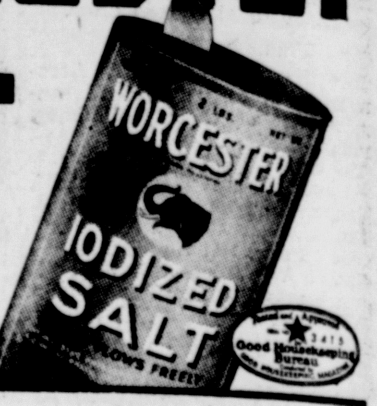

In order to obtain the data necessary in preparing the survey the Industrial Bureau sent out questionnaires to the industrial plants with the request that the information needed be supplied.

Practically all of the industries sent questionnaires, filled them out and returned them to the office of the Kingston Industrial Bureau which is located on the lower floor of the city hall.

The bureau office is in charge of Harry Kachigian, clerk of the bureau.

Temperature Rises Rapidly in Region

Mercury Today 25 Degrees
Higher Than Yesterday

It was 25 degrees warmer this morning than it was Wednesday morning, while an inch of snow had fallen in Kingston up to 7 o'clock this morning with the storm still in progress. The official city hall thermometer reported a reading of 24 degrees this morning as compared with the reading of one below zero Wednesday.

The highest point reached by the official city thermometer yesterday was 24 degrees that afternoon, and the weather grew colder during the night. Snow began falling during the early hours of the evening and the storm continued throughout the night.

Hills throughout the city became slippery from the falling snow and all of the sanding equipment was placed on the job of sanding down the hills and the slippery street intersections.

Firemen's School In Area Proposed

Retired Chief J. J. Deasy Makes Recommendation

A centrally located school for the volunteer firemen of Ulster county was recommended Wednesday night at a meeting of the board of directors of the Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association. Battalion Chief James J. Deasy, a retired member of the New York fire department, made the recommendation.

It was expected that the directors will submit a report on the proposed school at the meeting of the association to be held in Kingston next Tuesday night when the firemen will be the guests of Rapid Hose Company.

The business meeting will be held in the council chambers in the city hall, followed by a social hour at the Central Fire Station.

Santa Claus Finds Way to Fit Auto Into Christmas Stocking

Ingenious as modern science is, it still hasn't produced a stocking large enough for an automobile. But that needn't deter you from presenting a car to someone in the family. A few breathless ways to dramatize such a complete gift follows:

Get the dealer into the plot. Have him deliver the car to the door by an attendant. The attendant rings the bell. Your wife answers the ring. "Yes?" she asks quizzically. And herein lies the climax. The attendant merely answers: "Your car is here, madam."

Another way is even simpler. And it affords an opportunity for the entire family to join in the raptures of delight. Put the keys, neatly and attractively wrapped, in the Christmas stocking.

Comes the morning . . . and then someone for whom the keys are intended opens the package, sees the keys and goes rhapsodic over one of the grandest gifts you can choose for Christmas happiness.

This latter technique might also be used to present her with a new home. Or if you care for the theatrical, you might drive her to the home, step out with her, march her up to the door and present her with the keys.

Either way, you've found a magnificent way of producing breathless joy.

Believe in the Humble Pursuits of Living
Lake Hill, New York
December 2, 1940
To the Editor, The Kingston Daily Freeman, Kingston, New York.

Dear Sir:

It is a sad fact that the majority of us take the ordinary things of life too much for granted. We have been trained from childhood to follow sensational events, to live by headlines. Scandals, wars, politics, and unusual success stories have become the food of our reading and have permeated our thought.

So there is little wonder that discontent sours the minds of men and women who fill positions they regard as obscure.

The steady producers of our economic life should have their place in the news as well as the great financiers. The man who drives without accident is entitled to headlines as well as the one who runs into a bus and kills seven people.

At the present time our country is concerned with national defense and events abroad. We are filled with statistics concerning skilled workers, airplane parts, and new factories to the exclusion of other domestic enterprises.

But after these times have passed and war-stripped countries are crying for food and raw materials we shall fall back upon our farmers, our laborers, small merchants and dealers. We shall be moderately surprised to find them still functioning, obeying their old statutes of supply and demand.

So I would suggest to the individual that he regard his job in its proper relationship to the national whole. Everyone is essential to the social welfare.

Do not forget the everyday comforts of homelife, of daily contacts with neighbors and business associates.

Do not forget that winter and summer continue through wars and desolation.

Remember to believe in the humble pursuits of living.
Very truly yours,
Lloyd B. Surdam

MARLBOROUGH

Marlborough, Dec. 5—At the meeting of the Board of Education of the Marlborough Central School held recently, Salvatore Zambito, D. D. S., son of Mr. and Mrs. Steven Zambito of the Reservoir Road, Marlborough, was appointed school dentist. Dr. Zambito, who recently opened an office in Marlborough High School and of the University of Pennsylvania, Pa. A contract was also given to Miss

Miss Olive Altken will continue in the first grade. An N. Y. A. project has been set up in the school shop for boys who have graduated and wish to study mechanics or agriculture. The state defrays all expenses. January 8 has been set aside by the Central School board as registration night for night school. Due to the fact that not enough have signed to date for night school the time has been extended. However, if less than 150 enroll for the night school course, it will not be held this year.

Restitution
Rochester, Ind.—A stranger approached William Thompson recently as Thompson was milking in his barn and asked his "forgiveness."

"For what?" inquired the surprised Thompson.
"About five years ago, I stole some of your chickens," the visitor replied. "I have changed my way of living after being converted at a revival meeting and must make restitution. I haven't any money tonight but will send it to you as soon as I can."

Thompson has just received a check for $3.
Safer at Sea
Norfolk, Va.—Literally speaking, Hazard Gibbs, 42-year-old seaman of East Nassau, N. Y., found hazards of the land greater than those of the sea.

His left foot was smashed in an accident aboard a vessel here. An ambulance carrying him to the Marine Hospital was in collision with an auto and Gibbs' right leg was broken.

Fine!
Fresno, Calif.—John Giles Turner, Jr., was fined one cent because his automobile tail light was out.

Justice Earle J. Church said Turner was not aware the light was out until the arresting officer told him.
Big Swallow
El Paso, Tex.—It took an operation to recover a U. S. army private's largest wrist watch. He purposely swallowed it.

The Fort Bliss soldier was picked up in Mexico by Juarez authorities. He thought they might take his watch so he put it in his mouth.
An officer began lecturing him in Spanish. The private, not understanding, feared they wanted the watch. So he swallowed. The officers, sensing something was wrong, started him homeward.

An operation was performed at an El Paso hospital.

Expensive Ingredient
Minneapolis — "Glass," shouted Joseph Blindman as he bit into a potato dumpling at a dinner the other night.
But Mrs. George N. Stillman, who made the dumplings, was not perturbed.
The "glass" was a diamond which had slipped out of the setting in her ring while she was making the dumpling.

BRITISH TO OPEN SENSATIONAL DEVELOPMENTS

Possibility Grows That French in Africa Might Join With Anglo Forces

Colonial Help Would Do Much to Put Mr. Mussolini Out of Fight; Attack Upon Graziani Would Put Him in Desperate Plight

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

The major offensive which the British indicate they are inaugurating against Signor Mussolini with the idea of knocking him out of the war, is likely to see sensational developments in several directions.

For one thing there is a growing possibility that the strong French military forces in Northern Africa may defy their Vichy government and throw their lot in with the British, once the campaign is in full swing. As a matter of fact, from the wishful thinking being done in London I have a hunch the Britons are gambling a bit that they may be able to win their former Colonial allies over.

The British need this help. It's certain that while they probably can go far in their offensive on the strength of their naval and air forces, they will have to employ very considerable land contingents to deal with the Fascist armies in Africa. The Italians numerically are much the stronger—perhaps by more than two to one.

One of the chief obstacles with which the British will have to deal is the half million men under that famous desert fighter, Marshal Graziani, who in September started to invade Egypt from Libya and then got hung up for some not satisfactorily explained reason. That crafty old warrior can't be brushed out of Africa with a feather duster.

The British have said that they are preparing to transport troops from England into the Mediterranean area. However, they will be fortunate in my view if they are able to move in the immediate future all the men and equipment they need.

Precarious Business
Herr Hitler's fierce submarine campaign bids fair to render movement of troopships a very precarious business. That, of course, is one of the fuelers' objectives on his intensified U-boat and aerial warfare. He is trying to relieve the pressure on his unhappy Axis partner who already has his hands more than full with the Greek adventure.

Thus it is clear why the British are turning hopeful eyes toward General Weygand, chief of military and political affairs in French Africa, who has some 500,000 well-equipped troops at his disposal. Should these troops throw themselves on Graziani from the rear, thus putting him in a vise, his position would indeed be precarious if not utterly hopeless.

There is no doubt that there is a growing pro-British sentiment in the French colonies, as indeed there is in France itself. That is clear from numerous sources. Incidentally I have before me a copy of a confidential French colonial document which reached me through a neutral source. This is in the form of a memo by a certain official who discussed with his subordinates how to cope with the growing pro-British trend.

Sitting Very Tight

However, Weygand has been sitting very tight, and the world will have to wait until this distinguished soldier is ready to make known his position. Whatever may develop in this quarter, the indications are that the British are ready to tackle the job of cleaning up northern Africa.

It is a fair guess that Egypt will come into the war with the British, thereby adding very considerable military support. It would appear, too, that little ex-Empress Haile Selassie of Ethiopia is in process of working up a revolt among his people against the Italians.

In one respect the position of the Italian expeditionary forces is far from enviable. As I have emphasized before, they have for a long time been virtually cut off from communication by water with Italy owing to the British blockade. In other words they are deprived of both supplies and reinforcements. That fact in itself is worth an army to the British.

Naturally the first phase of the offensive must be to complete so far as possible the job of evicting the Italians from Albania. This campaign is proceeding apace, but one would expect the fierce winter weather of that mountainous region to slow operations down.

Simultaneously the British are tightening their blockade, and are bombing Italian cities from their new bases on Green territory. All Fascist communications have come under increased pressure.

He Chases Fires

Raton, N. M. (P)—Assistant Fire Chief Louis Dolan not only fights fires, he tracks 'em down. Driving his car toward the fire station, he saw a cloud of smoke on a distant street. He investigated and discovered a truck blazing near a garage and other buildings. Running to a telephone, he summoned his fire laddies before any serious damage occurred.

Five Die When Railroad Building Collapses at Fair

The death toll in the collapse of a false ceiling in the railroad building at the New York World's Fair stood at five today. Two other workmen were in Flushing Hospital with serious injuries. The seven were hurled 50 feet to the ground when the ceiling which they were demolishing gave way yesterday. Fifteen other men were working atop the dome directly above the false ceiling and about 50 others were demolishing other parts of the huge building at the time of the collapse. Assistant District Attorney John Roggenman said iron rods which supported the hanging ceiling would be sent to the police laboratory for analysis. Fair engineers theorized that yesterday's intensely cold weather might have caused the rods to snap.

Dr. Taylor Makes Bid for $12,000 From Supervisors

County Judge Files Report on Children's Court; Park Gives Statement on Aid for Blind

At a short session of the board of supervisors Wednesday evening the annual report of Dr. J. S. Taylor, director of the laboratory, was received and filed. Dr. Taylor asked for an appropriation of $12,000 and cited the fact that 48 per cent of the work done by the laboratory was for the county.

County Judge Andrew J. Cook filed the annual report of the children's court of Ulster county, in which he gave the statistical report of the work done and praised highly the cooperation of Mrs. Doremus, county agent for dependent children, Probation Officer Robert Service, District Attorney Haver, the state and city police, Sheriff Molyneux and county commissioner of public welfare, Robert Park, for their cooperation and assistance. The report was received and filed.

Park Gives Report

A report was also made by Mr. Park on the blind aid for the year. A balance of $5,582.26 was on hand at the opening of the year. Received from state and federal aid, $3,558.18 for a total of $9,140.44. Expended for blind aid $4,044.10 and for hospitalization $133.80 for a total expenditure during the year of $4,177.90. The balance is $4,962.54. State aid amounting to $86.50 has been paid to Ulster county residents who are living outside the county. Seventeen blind persons were receiving aid at the close of the present year and the average grant to blind persons was $17.84. The report was filed.

The report on money expended for dependent children for the year was also made by Mr. Park. A balance of $7,366.55 was on hand at the opening of the year. The appropriation was $17,000, giving of $24,266.55 for the work. To this was credited from state and federal aid $21,785.50, making a total fund available of $46,152.05. Expended $35,113.88, leaving a balance of $11,038.17. At the close of the year assistance was being given in 95 families to 209 children and 102 adults. The average grant was $28.63.

Supervisor Kniffin offered a resolution that there be assessed on the property of the Marlborough fire district the sum of $2,969. Over under rule.

The committee on salaries will meet Monday at 4 o'clock.

Schuler Has Answer

Just before adjournment Supervisor Schuler again brought up the matter of county superintendent of highways. He said he had an answer to make to Mr. Loughran's statements of Monday evening and asked whether he should present them now or wait until Mr. Loughran could be invited to attend the session.

Chairman Wadlin said that since Mr. Loughran had asked Mr. Schuler to visit his office in the future and make any complaint directly to him, that probably would be the proper thing to do rather than air the matter in the session.

"I want to present it here to the board," said Mr. Schuler. Supervisor Rifanbary said the

Golden Fleece Ends In Peasants' Arrest

Bucharest, Dec. 5 (P)—This is a modern story of the Golden Fleece.

Rumanian, customs officials became suspicious of blood on a flock of sheep some Bulgarian peasants were taking out of Rumania into Dobruja, now part of Bulgaria.

Investigation showed hides had been cut, gold inserted under the skin, and the cuts sewed up. Some sheep were gold bells around their necks. Gold bells had gold pieces hidden by long wool.

The Bulgarians were arrested.

question seemed to be one of no end with Mr. Schuler and he moved Mr. Schuler take up the matter with Mr. Loughran.

"I want to answer him now or I will write a letter to the press," said Mr. Schuler.

Supervisor O'Neill said several taxpayers had expressed a desire to attend the session of the board so they might see what happened. He said Mr. Loughran might be invited to attend such session.

"You said Monday night that the thing should be considered at an end," said Mr. Wadlin.

Mr. Rifanbary then called for his motion which was before the house and had been seconded.

"May I make a motion that Mr. Loughran be invited to appear here?" asked Mr. O'Neill.

At this point Mr. Schuler and others began to talk. Mr. Schuler attempted to speak and Chairman Wadlin told him that under the rule of the board a supervisor might speak once on a proposition.

"I was on the floor when Mr. Rifanbary made his motion," said Schuler.

The vote was called for and on Rifanbary's motion that Mr. Schuler take the matter up with Mr. Loughran at his office the vote was Aye 21 and No 7. Supervisors Duffy, Koenig, Laicher, Mooney, O'Neill, Schuler and Wood voted in opposition. Mr. Wadlin announced the motion carried.

Mr. Schuler said that those who voted "Aye" had voted wrong and against the taxpayers.

"The majority rules," said Rifanbary. He moved for adjournment and the motion was seconded quickly.

An attempt to continue the controversy was stopped when the motion to adjourn was called for. Further attempts to make a motion by Mr. O'Neill failed when Mr. Rifanbary called for a point of order and the session was adjourned until Monday at 7:30 o'clock amid charges that "that is steamroller."

Lent Tells Rifle League About Pending Bills

Washington Rifleman's Opinion Is That Acts Work of Groups in 5th Column

A number of firearms bills will be introduced in the legislatures of some 17 states next year, all intended for the purpose of taking firearms from the hands of the citizens of the United States, according to J. Russell Lent, senior club division of the National Rifle Association of Washington, D. C., addressing the post-season dinner of the Mid-Hudson Rifle League held Wednesday evening in the Hotel Stuyvesant.

Mr. Lent said that he believed the bills intended to deprive sportsmen of their rifles was the work of Fifth Columnists. He said that a bill had been introduced which required all owners of guns to register them with a commissioner and he had the power to grant the registration or refuse to do so. Fortunately the bill was killed.

Mr. Lent said that a similar bill was introduced in Germany requiring the registration of all firearms and as a result when Hitler took over the country he knew where every gun was and was able to seize them.

France, said Mr. Lent, had a similar law, and when England recently organized its Home Guard it was found that owing to stringent regulations that the majority of the men enrolled had never handled a gun.

Mr. Lent in closing urged the members of the league to watch carefully any firearms bill that might be introduced and to report the bill at once to the NRA at Washington where steps would be taken to defeat it if possible. He said that in this country every one should know how to handle a gun.

Attending the dinner as guests were some of the best shots in the country, who were introduced and spoke briefly of the growth of rifle shooting in this country, recalling the days at the turn of the century when there were but few rifle clubs with but few members.

The War Department said the President acted because he felt that:

"At a time when bombers are raining death and destruction over Europe, an American long-range bombing plane might well be spared to go on a mission which might save a life."

Mrs. Davila, wife of Dr. Carlos Davila, who was president of Chile in 1932, and prior to that, Chilean ambassador to the United States, has been seriously ill here for some time.

Dr. Davila would not specify her ailment, but said she had undergone two operations and had suffered a general breakdown after the second. He will accompany his wife.

Her physician, Dr. Harry J. Johnson, termed Mrs. Davila's condition as not actually critical, but said a return to the warm climate of her native land might have considerable beneficial effect.

The flight plan called for a non-stop hop to Canal Zone, Panama, and one other at Lima, Peru, before proceeding to Santiago.

ment and the motion was seconded quickly.

An attempt to continue the controversy was stopped when the motion to adjourn was called for. Further attempts to make a motion by Mr. O'Neill failed when Mr. Rifanbary called for a point of order and the session was adjourned until Monday at 7:30 o'clock amid charges that "that is steamroller."

petition overseas against some of the best rifle shots in the world, and both men held many individual records with both large bore and small bore guns.

Dave Carlson, the 1940 National small bore champion, was introduced and spoke briefly expressing his pleasure in being present with the rifle shooters of the mid-Hudson valley.

Jack Lacey, director of juvenile activities of the Connecticut Rifle Club, spoke briefly of the team of boys he had organized and of the success they meet in competitive shoots. George Parkin of the same club also spoke briefly.

Ed Rozelle, sports editor of the Poughkeepsie Evening Star; George "Pop" Sheldon, the "number 1" small bore shooter of the Mid-Hudson League; Charles Hoyt Smith, secretary and treasurer of the league; Guy Morehouse of Poughkeepsie Rifle Club, who proved a humorous and entertaining speaker with a fund of witty stories.

One of the principal reasons for the holding of the post-season dinner last night was to distribute medals to the five highest scoring members of each club in the league.

Mr. Lent, on behalf of the league, made the presentation.

Poughkeepsie—Al Hoyt, Joe Lyons, H. Jerrell, George Sheldon, and Guy Morehouse.

Newburgh—Don and William McKee, John and Fred Hooker, Herb Glass and James Greenwood.

Coxsackie—Joe Morgan, Don Coy, Harry Palmer, Henry Scudder and Arch Ballinger.

Peekskill—William Waite, Jr., William Melville, C. Mason, William Sachaw and E. Barrett.

New Paltz—Al Paradise, Ted Lasher, Ted Smith, Harry Karm and Charles Ellis.

Poughkeepsie Won
The Poughkeepsie Rifle and Pistol Club was awarded the handsome trophy having won it three successive years, 1938-39-40. The trophy was presented to "Pop" Sheldon, captain of the team.

There was some talk of handicapping the clubs next season so that some other club in the league might win the trophy.

County Will Send More Draftees to U. S. Army Corps

Brigadier General Brown Says December 12 Day for 7-County Call Including Ulster

Ulster county again will contribute a small quota of draftees to aid in general replacement of men rejected in last week's mobilization.

Men called from the local area will be inducted into the United States Army December 12, when according to the Associated Press 494 draftees from outside New York city will be called to service.

Following are quotas to be supplied next week and inducted at: Albany: Dec. 12—76 from Columbia, Delaware, Fulton, Greene, Herkimer, Montgomery, Otsego, Saratoga, Schoharie, and Washington counties. Dec. 13—83 from Albany, Rensselaer and Schenectady counties.

Who Killed Aunt Maggie?

By MEDORA FIELD

YESTERDAY, Lieutenant Gregory of the Atlanta police is questioning everybody who was in Sally and Bill's handsome old country house at the time Aunt Maggie was murdered, and finding out very little. Now Sally herself has two negroes in her dining room, and learns from Linda that Eph, son of Linda's husband by a former marriage, has been prowling about the house the day before. Sally thinks she may have the clue Lieutenant Gregory wants, and continues to question Linda.

Chapter 26

Telephone Wire

"A BOUT what time was Ephraim over here?" I asked. "He came home about three, Miss Sally," said Linda. "He came over here just a little while after."

"But why should he come here if he knew you were somewhere else?" I asked Thomas.

"Miss Sally, Eph want somebody phone for the doctor man, that what I think. But I guess he don't find nobody."

"You are sure of the time?" I asked Linda.

"Yes, I'm sure. I take that short cut through the woods to go to my aunt's house and it was after four when I got there."

Ephraim's visit, no doubt, solved the mysterious footsteps in the kitchen and the door that slammed when I was upstairs. I did not want to jump to conclusions, but it did occur to me that while Lieutenant Gregory was conducting his investigation in the office I was probably solving the murder, much less formally, in the dining room.

"Thomas, why didn't you tell me about this when I talked to you this morning?" I asked.

"Miss Sally, ma'am, I ain't know till Linda tell me this morning that Eph been over here. Anyways, he never come back here last night, Miss Sally. I was with him the whole time. But, Miss Sally, that man I tell you about, he was here yesterday. I forgot to tell you he had a long knife in his hand and he was lookin' all around the house like he want to cut somebody's throat."

It seemed to me that I could follow Thomas's train of thought perfectly, but I asked him to describe the bloodthirsty-looking visitor.

"He was a big tall man with a black mustache, Miss Sally. Well, the black mustache clinched the matter. Thomas was merely connecting a smoke screen. "Why didn't you tell me this to begin with?" I asked.

"It scared my mind, Miss Sally. But Ephraim, he ain't had nothin' to do with makin' no trouble over here, Miss Sally. Eph ain't no bad boy."

"Did the doctor ever come?" Strange that Dr. Grace should pass so near the house and not drop it, and on such a night, too.

"Yes, n, he come. That young doctor man what help Dr. Grace. He been here before when my misery was bad," Thomas explained. "He say Eph done got in—in—"

"In what?"

"Well, Miss Sally, seems like he got out in a fight. And the place it ain't got well yet. The doctor man say it in—"

"Infected? Well, how is he today?"

"The doctor man say to keep him in bed. He still just layin' there with a high fever and don't know nobody."

"What time did the doctor come last night?"

"I don't rightly remember, Miss Sally. It was kind of late. All the time I worry about Eph, I think maybe no doctor not get here at all on account all that rain. But finally, here he come."

"Did you tell the police about Ephraim, Thomas?"

"No, they never ask me nothin' about Eph. They just want to know where Linda is or anybody else that suppose to be 'round here. Well, Eph ain't suppose to be 'round here. Leastwise, he don't what you'd say live here, Miss Sally."

"All right, but from now on I think it would be best if we all tell the police everything we know. And, Thomas, don't try telling them more than you know. Don't go making up stories about men with black mustaches and long knives, because they will be sure to catch up with you and then they won't believe anything you say."

"I sho' am goin' to tell 'em the truth," said Linda, giving Thomas a scornful look.

Enter Bessie

I KNEW exactly what I was going to do when the door swung shut behind them. I would telephone Dr. Grace, learn the name of his assistant and check on the time he visited Ephraim last night. That would either give Ephraim an alibi or place him at the head of the list of suspects.

But with my hand on the doorknob, I was halted by Bessie, who evidently had been waiting for Thomas and Linda to finish their interview.

"She came over close, looked around in all directions and whispered, 'I done found a clue, Miss Sally.'"

"What do you mean, clue?" I asked, Thomas and Ephraim still on my mind.

"It's somethin' I found," she went on cautiously. "You know this mornin' when I was makin' up the beds and cleanin' up the bathrooms, with Thomas to help me 'cause Andrew went to town and then was busy when he come back—"

"Yes, yes, Bessie, what is it?"

"Well, we finish all the rooms, 'cept Miss Eve's and she still in there, but she say I can come in and straighten up. And, Miss Sally, I found somethin' ain't got no business in there, else I'm crazy."

"But what is it?"

"Didn't that man what come to fix the phone say it done been cut in two places and a piece of wire throwed away?"

"Yes, he did say something like that."

Bessie opened her mouth, seemed to be struck speechless by some thought that hit her all of a heap and, turning, made a waddling dash for the door. Completely mystified, I started to follow, but at that moment the library door opened and Alice wandered in. "I'm looking for Plutarch," she explained. "He was up in my room just after breakfast and now I can't find him."

"He'll show up," I consoled her. "You can't lose a cat, you know. Here comes Bessie. Maybe she knows something about him."

"I'll get him for you," I said. "I've been up there. Poor thing, he's probably scared to death. I'll go and see if somebody left the basement door open." And she wandered out again.

"What in the world happened to you just now?" I asked Bessie sternly.

She looked puzzled for a moment, then her face cleared. "Oh, Miss Sally," she grinned. "I just remember my Sally Lunn muffins in the oven. But they all right. Just a little brown. I don't know what come over me, puttin' them muffins in the stove 'fore you all was at the table."

"But what was all this about a clue?"

The Wire

BESSIE looked around the room again, then her voice dropped to a whisper. "Miss Sally, you reckon Miss Eve kill Miss Maggie?"

"What on earth makes you ask that?"

Bessie reached into her apron pocket and pulled out a piece of telephone wire about half a yard long.

"In Miss Eve's room, all hid away."

"What do you mean, hid away?"

"Well, you might just as well say hid away, Miss Sally. When I empty the wastebasket, I notice there was a pair of stockin's in there. Miss Eve had throwed 'em away 'cause they was a run in 'em and then I see this package. Looks like she would have given me them stockin's without throwin' 'em away, don't you think so, Miss Sally?" Bessie interrupted herself to ask indignantly. The fact that she weighs about a hundred pounds more than Eve and that her feet must be several sizes larger had nothing to do with her feeling in the matter.

"Perhaps she didn't think they were worth offering to you," I placated. "What about this package? Was it in the wastebasket, too?"

"Yes'm. It and some cotton and them tissues you take cream off with. And then I see this package wasn't just some paper wadded up like I first think. So I unwrapped it and find that piece of wire. Well, bless sweet Jesus, I say, what Miss Eve got this old piece of wire? Then I remember about the telephone."

"Where were you when you unwrapped this package, Bessie?"

"In the back hall, where I take the wastebasket to empty it in the big one to bring downstairs so Andrew can take it to the furnace."

"Then nobody saw you unwrap it?"

"No, ma'am."

"You are sure you didn't find it in the big wastebasket, after you emptied the small one? You are sure it came from Miss Eve's room?"

"Yes'm. Miss Sally, I see it when I pick up them stockin's. I ain't got to run no risk gettin' them tore no worse by emptyin' 'em in the big wastebasket."

"A right. Don't say anything about this until I've had time to talk to Mr. Bill."

The telephone rang and I said I would answer it. At Wisteria Hall my grandmother had only the one phone and that in the hall closet. It was the old-fashioned box-on-the-wall variety and the piece of wire obviously had been cut from the extension cord reaching up from the floor to the box. As I took down the receiver, I hung the loose piece of wire over the telephone.

Someone who introduced himself as Jamieson said he thought I might be interested to know that on Saturday at around eleven o'clock a man in a convertible came had inquired at his garage in Roswell in direction to take in order to get to Wisteria Hall.

Mr. Jamieson said he thought nothing of it at the time.

A Tribute to Salesmen

It has been said that salesmen are a big problem to their bosses, to their wives, to conservative credit managers, to hotels and to sometimes to each other. They live in hotels, on trains, in automobiles, on buses, in cabs; eat all kinds of food; drink all kinds of liquids, good and bad; sleep before, during and after business. In many ways they are a tribute unto themselves. They draw and spend more money with less effort and get smaller value out of it, than any civilized group in business. They come at the most inopportune times, under the slightest pretext, stay longer under more opposition, ask more personal questions, make more comment, put up with more inconvenience, take more for granted under greater resistance, than any group or body including the United States Army. They make more noise and mistakes, correct more errors, adjust more differences, cause more divorces, tell more lies, explain more discrepancies, bear more grievances, pacify more belligerents, and lose more time under high pressure without losing their temper, than any class we know, including ministers. They introduce more new goods, dispose of more old goods, load more freight cars, unload more ships, build more factories, start more new business, and write more debits and credits in our ledgers than any group in America. And when we buyers find ourselves in a tight spot we usually pick out from amongst our salesman friends one of several in whom we repose complete confidence for counsel and advice, and get it clean and straight.

Ephraim—Mr. Ewing, what's you seen dat God ain't seen?

Mr. Ewing—What a silly question: you know that can't be, Eph. God is all-wise, all-powerful, all-present.

Ephraim—No, suh, it's true, Mr. Ewing, you seen sumphin' which God ain't seen, an' dat's yo' equal.

Others. Just as that nation is richest which has within its borders the greatest number of happy, progressive people, so is that man richest whose interest in and service to others is reflected in the greater happiness and contentment of those around him.

First Veteran—Elmer used to be a hard-boiled sergeant but he's as meek as a mouse when his wife gives him a tongue-lashing.

Second Veteran—He don't open his mouth—but I bet he makes fists at her in his pocket.

The after-dinner speaker, with a talk ahead of him, may not enjoy the meal but oftentimes he enjoys the speech.

Bertha—So Edith has made it up with Fred? How did it happen?

Constance—Oh, you see, it was the only way in which she could have another quarrel with him.

We often hear the old-timers say they wish the girls would wear the modest styles of the dear dead yesterday. We bet they would double up with laughter if they saw any young women coming down street garbed in the style of 1898.

Two elderly women, down town together, having a soda in a local drug store, began to talk of modern fashions.

Mrs. L.—What do you think of the hats the girls wear?

Mrs. M. (in disgust)—They don't wear hats. They just walk along beside them nowadays.

Beauty—By Another Gunge

She said: "I wonder why God, who rules from far above us, Does not create more pretty-folks—since He's supposed to love us?"

And I replied: "What makes you think our beauty standards right?"

Why, God may think our skin-deep charm a most unlovely sight."

Do we choose eyes whose lashes droop, or those which see just good?

Do we pick lips which curse, or lips which say kind things they should?

Do we select the shapely hands, or ones which do their duty?

Perhaps if we should use His guage we'd find a lot more beauty.

—Lyla Myers

Riding Instructor—Did you enjoy your horseback ride?

Probation Officer Makes His Yearly Report to Board

Robert J. Service, chief probation officer for the county of Ulster, made his annual report to the Board of Supervisors Wednesday evening. The report was received and filed. Mr. Service reported on the work of his office and submitted a statistical report showing the work which had been carried on through his office during the year. His report follows:

To the Honorable Andrew J. Cook, Judge, County and Children's Courts, Ulster county, N. Y.

Your Honor: You will find appended a brief statistical report of the official cases which have been on probation from the County and Children's Courts of this county for the past year. In addition to these cases a number of investigations were made for the probation departments of other courts concerning cases of persons who were under investigation by their departments and who had at some time had contacts in this county. Our cases from other counties are likewise investigated for us by probation officers in other jurisdictions.

I want first to pay my humble tribute to the memory of Judge Frederick G. Traver with whom I have had the good fortune to work since April, 1922, when he was district attorney and later when he served so conscientiously as Judge of the County and Children's Courts of this county until his last illness and death. He was wise indeed but Rousseau in his "Emile" said, "What wisdom can you find that is greater than kindness." His kindness was practical and seldom misplaced. If he erred, it was on the side of charity toward others. He could have saved his energy but he felt the importance of his position in terms of the welfare of humanity and no man ever spent himself more freely in seeking justice and especially when the welfare of children was concerned. When stiff words and discipline were needed, however, he knew how and when to apply them most effectively. To Judge Traver the force of the law was not an instrument of revenge but rather a factor to be used for the betterment of the individual concerned. His loss is keenly felt.

In the resignation of Miss Mildred Townsley we lost a most courteous and efficient co-worker in the office. The importance of her position in the smooth and efficient operation of the details of the court work are not fully realized until one of Miss Townsley's personality and capabilities leaves the work.

Judges from neighboring counties sat in Judge Traver's place and there was little time for adjustment between their several practices and the work of this department. Under the circumstances, however, things seem to have worked out quite well in spite of the unavoidable handicaps and necessary delays. When this probation department was set up about 18 years ago, we had a representative of the Division of Probation of the Department of Correction of the State spend a day with your probation officer to see that the work was running smoothly and according to law. We have just had our second inspection followed by the guidance of a personal representative of the State Department. She has had and will have still further recommendations which, from my experience, I would urge attentive consideration on the part of the Judge of the Court and the Board of Supervisors of this county.

This has been a most difficult year because of the losses and changes that have just been mentioned, so the inspection has come at a most opportune time. The suggestions given will be helpful in revising the probation work and records making for a better blending with the changing legal requirements. It is obvious that the full requirements of the law in relation to probation cannot be met without a full-time probation officer and a clerk or stenographer.

Economically speaking, probation is the best way to treat many offenders of the law both from the standpoint of the salvaging of human values but also in the saving of the taxpayer's dollar. It costs a great deal of money to incarcerate an individual for a year and in many cases the social values potential in that individual are a total loss to the community for a long period thereafter. We had one case discharged this year illustrative of this fact of the value of probation. A man misappropriated considerably over $2,000 of public funds from a certain district in the southern part of this county 11 years ago. He was given a sentence to Clinton Prison but this was suspended and he was placed on probation. Through this probation period, which ended a few months ago, he has maintained his job and self-respect and has also settled in full the question of restitution by installments taken from his wages. If he had been sent to prison, the money would have been lost; the tax payer would have been compelled to support him and both he and his family would have lost much of social value to the community. We have on our books many other cases of similar character over which we throw the cloak of privacy between the individual and the Court for very obvious reasons. In cases where neither restitution nor reparation is involved, in cases only of anti-social behavior, probation has like economic and human values.

Probation puts human values into the administration of justice in criminal and children's courts. As usual the sheriff and his staff, the city, village and state police as organizations and as individuals have been most cooperative with your probation department.

AREA DEMOLITION... New Bomb Technique

(P) Feature Service

A brand new blanket bombing technique—area demolition—is Germany's latest contribution to the science of modern warfare. The destruction of whole cities rather than single targets is the objective, a source close to the R. A. F. reports, pointing to the recent systematic bombing of Coventry and Birmingham. These cities on England's Midlands were test tubes for the unveiling.

Area bombers approach a city in level flight formation—in the exact pattern in which the bombs will fall. The area each bomb will destroy is known. The planes fly close enough together that these demolition areas overlap.

Radio-electric timers release the bombs simultaneously in pattern. The salvoes are spaced at split-second intervals so that their demolition areas also overlap.

A number of private citizens have given freely of their time and effort in individual cases in supervising and aiding probationers. I want to thank them all.

Probation has never been used in Ulster county as an easy means to the solution of a difficult anti-social problem. Your Honor and District Attorney Haver have seen to it that the same high standards have been kept. It is in the proper selection of cases for probation that the success or failure of the probationary work largely rests. I want to thank you for your support and encouragement.

Evan J. Davis Speaks at Rotary

New Member Is Welcomed Into Service Club

Evan J. Davis attended his first meeting as a member of the Kingston Rotary Club Wednesday at the Governor Clinton Hotel and gave a brief vocational talk on the casket industry. A comparatively new industry in Kingston, its product has sales that reach as far north as Montreal, Canada, and as far south as Miami, Fla.

Rotarian Davis's talk was not as funeral as the subject topic might indicate, for he prefaced his remarks with his "obituary," which expressed a philosophy of life that is consistent with the precepts and practices of Rotary organizations.

His experience at working while at the substantial age of eight years, while not unique in Rotary circles, was very interesting. Starting in the coal fields of Scranton, Pa., where sunlight was often a Sunday treat and the school bell was conspicuous by his absence, the speaker next told of his work while connected with the Y. M. C. A. in the humanitarian effort of assisting the underprivileged and delinquent. His diploma from the Anthracite University has carried with it a humanness that is further evidenced in his avocation—the writing of poetry.

Embodied in the two poems which he read, one dedicated to his mother and the other to his son, are beautiful and high thoughts.

In closing his remarks, Mr. Davis expressed a desire to assist in the work being carried on by the Rotary Club.

Announcement was made of the Christmas Cheer barn dance to be held tonight at the auditorium.

The Red Sea is remarkable for its coral reefs which extend generally in long strips parallel with the shore.

of their country in the world situation which was even then developing.

"What would we not give today, we who are responsible for the country's supreme defense effort, if the great St. Lawrence turbines were already in place, steadily revolving under the drive of St. Lawrence waters now running to waste, producing every hour of the day 1,000,000 horsepower to supply the expansion of our essential defense industries.

"Had this project been started in 1934, as we urged, it would now be complete and occupying a place with other great projects, such as the Tennessee valley in the southeast, Boulder Dam in the southwest, and the Columbia river projects in the northwest, among the great national defense assets of this continent.

"No one who has studied our national defense problems and the international situation can possibly fail to see the need for this project in the defense of the United States. The Congress of the United States, in providing funds for a two-ocean navy on a program covering many years, has properly recognized the essential place of sea power in continental defense. The world's merchant tonnage is diminishing at the rate of tens of thousands of tons a month. The distances which may be effectively covered by bombing planes are rapidly increasing.

"Seacoast shipyards are already overtaxed with uncompleted construction. Shipyards on the Great Lakes, with access to the ocean, yet close to the sources of supply of labor, raw and finished materials, further removed from possible attack, may be a vital factor in successful defense of this continent. They will help to build the ships which will bring back commerce to the harbors of the Atlantic coast ports.

"Opponents of the project have pointed out that it takes four years to build this seaway. They know, but fail to mention, that it takes at least that long to build a battleship. They also know that this project will cost the United States less than three battleships and that the power project will be entirely self-liquidating.

Hopes for Improvement

"We hope that the world situation may soon improve. But we are bound to be prepared for a long period of possible danger. Who can say, with assurance, that we shall not need for our defense or peaceful pursuits every possible shipbuilding resource, particularly those that exist and may be developed in the interior of our country? Only one who can say that we do not need the battleships that we are now building will dare to say that we do not need the essential Great Lakes-St. Lawrence seaway.

"The need for the seaway is coupled with an increasing demand for the power. Already our defense industries in the northeast have been required to import huge blocks of electric power from Canada. They are asking greater imports and Canada can agree to supply this power only temporarily. A new source of cheap power for national defense must be developed immediately.

"Along with its benefits to national defense, this project will contribute to the peacetime welfare of a multitude of laborers, small business men, home owners, and farmers. I said in 1936 and I say now, 'such a development as we propose to carry out in the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence basin unquestionably will result in greater activity for all ports and transportation agencies. This has been the history of all new navigation projects and improvements directed to better commercial communication in this country and throughout the world. The fear that the seaway will result in injury on the lower Mississippi or to our Atlantic ports is groundless.'

"Along with its benefits to national defense, this project will contribute to the peacetime welfare of a multitude of laborers, small business men, home owners, and farmers. I said in 1936 and I say now, 'such a development as we propose to carry out in the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence basin unquestionably will result in greater activity for all ports and transportation agencies. This has been the history of all new navigation projects and improvements directed to better commercial communication in this country and throughout the world. The fear that the seaway will result in injury on the lower Mississippi or to our Atlantic ports is groundless.'

Importance to People

"What this project means to the ordinary man and woman cannot be too highly stressed. It means a more secure nation. It means a continent protected and served by the additional shipping built in inland shipyards. It means more industries, both defense and domestic, thriving on the cheapest power in history. It means more comforts in the homes of many cities and rural areas. It means more work for the ordinary citizen in shipyards, factories, and other transportation services connecting the center of this continent with this great highway to and from our national and international markets.

"I am preparing to press for the immediate construction of this project. Because of its vital defense character I have allocated one million dollars of the defense funds made available by the Congress to make the necessary engineering surveys and to prepare the preliminary plans and specifications so that no time may be lost in starting the undertaking. "I am conducting conversations with our neighbor, Canada," the President concluded, "to work out the international aspects of the development of this great common asset. I shall propose to the Congress of the United States, which will assemble in January, that it take the necessary steps toward completion of this St. Lawrence seaway and power project on which so much of our national safety and welfare depend."

Treat, Clean Wheat Seed

Two of the most important things in growing wheat are to treat the seed for stinking smut and clean out the weed seeds before planting it, according to J. C. Hackleman, crops extension specialist of the University of Illinois. Loose smut, which doesn't reduce the milling value of wheat as does stinking smut, is not controllable with chemical dusts. Hackleman presents United States department of agriculture figures which show that in 17 southern Illinois counties all but four have had losses from dockage because of the presence of cheat, cockle and other weed seeds.

'World's Oldest Corn'

For 20 years the Smithsonian institution exhibited the "world's oldest ear of corn," a Peruvian treasure that was held by paleobotanists to be several thousand years old. In 1932, it was re-examined by other scientists who found that it was only a clay replica of an ear of ancient maize with cavities containing pellets. It was a homemade rattle.

Special Message For All Husbands

Don't Be Timid About Giving Her a Range or Refrigerator

This little piece is directed mainly to husbands who might be a bit timid about considering something very practical rather than only glamorous, as a gift for their wives this Christmas.

There is no longer any need for being timid about giving her—say a refrigerator, or a range, or even a washing machine or an electric iron.

When modern household appliances come to mind as possibilities for the husband to give to his wife, Mr. Man has really got something there. What the modern household appliances makes possible in the way of giving, is year round relief for women from old fashioned household drudgery.

The modern electric range, for example, may be had equipped with automatic controls which enables the housewife to put her things in the oven set the dials to whatever the cooking requirements may be, leave the house and enjoy the afternoon while the range does all the work to perfection, without endless watching. The newest refrigerators have, among many other features, cold storage compartments which enable the housewife to take advantage of bargain days in the food world, thus cutting down her shopping time, and saving more pennies than you think, for the household budget.

The washing machine and the electric iron of today are not only effort eliminating and money saving household appliances, but they also have been designed with so excellent a sense of beauty that leaves the laundry as presentable upstairs, as well as in the basement.

The electric iron of this era is a streamlined automatic device, sometimes equipped with air cooled handles, and almost always equipped with controls that take half the physical labor out of finishing things from the family laundry which Mrs. Housewife refuses to let anyone else touch.

When Mr. Man considers giving household appliances to his wife for this Christmas, his real gift to her will be relief from health sapping effort she need no longer indulge in. It will be a gift of more leisure, a gift of more attractive surroundings, a gift that really does something for her.

The complete list of appliances suitable for Christmas giving in this spirit is almost endless, and embraces many table top electrical cooking devices which are as beautiful in design, and as presentable in appearance as the fine things wrought by silversmiths of old.

No need for any husband to be timid about giving gifts of this kind to a Modern Housewife. They are what she wants.

Codfish Fly, Too

Niami, Fla. (AP)—It was no surprise to Pan American Airways officials when they were called upon to handle a shipment of dry codfish samples to Brazil. In recent years the big clippers which connect the Americans have carried items ranging from jewelry and furs to humming birds and peacocks.

New Agency Seems To Be in Offing To Speed Defense

A new government agency, to plan and expedite defense program orders, appears to be in the offing. Commander L. B. Combs, assistant chief of the Navy's Bureau of Yards and Docks, yesterday told the Producers' Council that such an office is the inevitable outgrowth of the defense program. He said that the classes of priorities under the present system are too broad and that further study and more detailed regulation are essential if delays and confusion are to be prevented. Particularly was this seen to be true of shipbuilding and aircraft production. The new office would make a continuous investigation, so that the government always would know the capacity, backlog and unused capacity of every plant. Thus it would be possible to award contracts to the producer who could deliver fastest without interrupting his other business.

Filings of securities issues with the SEC of late indicate that several hundred millions of dollars of corporate financing, both new money and refunding operations, is likely within the next few months. Some of the financing will shift outstanding capital from preferred stocks into funded debt, as more advantageous under the present tax laws.

Chairman Robertson of Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. says that his concern has a backlog of unfilled orders totaling $180,000,000. Shipments at present are running at the rate of $21,000,000 to $22,000,000 a month. Included in orders on hand is $100,000,000 worth of electrical equipment for naval vessels. Some of this equipment will not be needed until 1944.

Interest in one utility, Commonwealth & Southern, in which 114,500 shares changed hands Wednesday, raised the total volume of transactions to 651,170 shares for the day vs. 450,000 Tuesday, but price changes were negligible, with the undertone firm. The Dow-Jones industrial average was off .03 for the day, to close at 130.75; rails dropped .22, to 27.78, and the utilities were up .02 to 20.27.

Tendency of commodities was upward, the index gaining 0.26 point. Cotton gained three to seven points, rising for the third consecutive day. Wheat was firm, futures closing unchanged to 3/4 cent a bushel higher, December wheat going to 90 cents.

Plan of Commonwealth & Southern to sell its holdings in Georgia Power Co., brought on unusual activity in the stock yesterday, one block of 52,500 shares selling at 75 cents a share. Plan is viewed as beneficial to the preferred stock, which advanced 1 1/2, but not of so much value to the junior issue. Biggest gainer on the active list Wednesday was N. Y. Shipping, which moved upward 1 1/2.

Trade news was good. Electric power output made a new high. The two largest steel companies, U. S. and Bethlehem, are operating at better than 100 per cent of theoretical capacity. Carloadings were estimated to have made more than a seasonal gain the past week. There was a long list of favorable dividend statements.

New York, Dec. 5 (AP) — The stock market today turned in another spotty performance.

The list stumbled after an easy start on a rally. Dealings slowed, however, and a number of issues were able to cancel initial losses of fractions to a point or so near the final hour. Transfers were at the rate of about 550,000 shares.

A little louder peace talk heard in boardrooms, brokers said, served to offset business optimism to some extent. Year-end tax selling continued as a brake and thoughts of boosted imports in 1941 were hardly bullish.

Bonds and commodities milled over an uneven route. Among stocks inclined to skid were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Boeing, United Air Lines, Consolidated Edison, Standard Oil of N. J., Kennecott, Westinghouse, Union Carbide, Loft Eastman Kodak and Southern Railway.

Resistance was shown by American Smelting, du Pont, Dod Chemical, Great Northern, Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck.

Curb losers included Glen Alden Coal, American Cyanamid "B," Gulf Oil, Lake Shore and Phoenix Securities.

Court Adjourned By County Judge

Only One Case Taken Up in Wednesday's Session

Judge Andrew J. Cook adjourned the September trial term of county court to chambers Wednesday afternoon after a session which had been continued adjournments since the opening of the court in September. This will be the last trial session of the court held by Judge Cook, who will be succeeded January 1 by Judge-elect J. Edward Conway.

Only one matter came before the court. Harris Kass of town of Wawarsing appeared in court and presented to District Attorney N. LeVan Haver a letter stating that on Tuesday $350 in cash and a $100 check had been presented to the Industrial Board in New York city in settlement of a judgment which followed a compensation hearing at which an award was made some three years ago for injuries suffered by an employee of Kass.

The case has been in the court several times with extensions granted Kass, but Monday District Attorney Haver told the court that he was being pressed by the state department and a settlement must be made or Kass would be put to trial under an indictment charging failure to carry workmen's compensation.

Benjamin Linstein, counsel for Kass, promised to go to New York and pay the sum due. The letter stated that Kass had deposited the $450 with the commission and that it would be some time before the approval was forthcoming. The settlement was accepted by the court as a proper offer to warrant the case being continued to the opening of the February trial term. If the settlement offered by Kass is not approved by the Industrial Board the case will be moved for trial then.

Indian Valley Inn Bought by Joyce

Ellenville Man Purchases Hostelry in Kerhonkson

Ellenville, Dec. 5 — William Joyce of this village purchased the Indian Valley Inn at Kerhonkson Monday from Mrs. Evelyn Meagher Morse, widow of the late Percy C. Morse, under whose guidance the inn had become one of the best known hostels in the county.

Mr. Joyce said he plans to assume active management within a week although he will not move his family to Kerhonkson until about the first of the year. The transaction, made through the Terwilliger Agency of this village, includes besides the buildings, a nine-lot tract of land across the highway and another on the old state road.

Mr. Joyce, who has made Ellenville his home for the last six years and who has been employed by his father-in-law, John Spadaro, owner of the Shadowland Theatre and the Mitchell House in Ellenville for the past four years, explained Wednesday that he will not make many changes before spring.

Headquarters for the Kerhonkson area draft board, the inn is a 32-room structure and is one of the oldest buildings in this area. In former years it had been used as the Kerhonkson stage house on the Kingston stage line.

Mr. Morse, who died at the Inn on July 21 of this year, purchased it almost 30 years ago with Clark Collins of Rutland, Vt., as his partner. Known then as the old Schoonmaker hotel property, the hotel was purchased from John D. Van Kleeck. At the time of transfer the inn was being run by Humbert C. Rockwell, whose lease was to expire shortly after the transaction. A few years after Mr. Morse and Mr. Collins bought the property, Mr. Morse bought his partner's share and from that time to his death he had continued to add to the reputation of the hotel.

Snowfall Proves Menace in State

Mercury Takes Sudden Rise; Roads Blocked

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 5 (AP)—New Yorkers, harassed for three consecutive days by zero temperatures, found respite today from extreme cold weather, but discovered snow still a menace.

As temperatures rose to an average 20-30 degrees above zero in most sections, snow fell, leaving a new blanket on already ice-coated, snow-packed highways. State police said all main roads were open, but "rough and slippery." They advised motorists to use "extreme caution" in Dutchess and Putnam counties where three inches of snow slowed traffic. Winds-driven snow blocked side roads near Lowville and in southern Oneida county. One-way traffic was reported near Pulaski on the Watertown-Syracuse road.

A steady snow fell in New York city, the weather bureau expecting it to turn to rain during the day. One to six inches were reported in south central New York, and 5.4 inches in the last 24 hours in Buffalo.

The mercury, meanwhile, ascended rapidly in sharp contrast to record below zero temperatures of yesterday. Overnight lows included: (All above zero): Rochester, 26; Binghamton, 28; Syracuse, 26; Ithaca, 18; Jamestown, 22; Malone, 24; Buffalo, 25; Lockport, 24; Saranac Lake, 16; Albany, 27; Watertown, 5.

Boon to Red Cross

Penney Farms, Fla.—When the American Red Cross puts out a call for help, this community answers in nothing flat. Penney Farms was the first Red Cross chapter in the country to report to national headquarters it had reached its membership goal. Under the chairmanship of the Rev. Asa Reeds Dilts, the chapter not only reached the goal, but doubled it before noon of the first day of the roll call period. More than 200 persons, twice as many as last year, became Red Cross members.

The government says Brazil now has 125,000 miles of roads. Unofficial estimates are that perhaps 20 to 25 per cent can be called good roads. The greatest share of the mileage is in the southern and central-coastal sections.

Benedictine Ladies' Auxiliary Annual Tea Held Wednesday

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Benedictine Hospital was hosts to 90 members and friends at the annual Christmas tea Wednesday afternoon in the Nurses' Home. The living room was attractive in its holiday setting and the tea table, with its long, flat centerpiece of poinsettia and silver candleabra and other appointments was the center of interest.

Preceding the tea a business meeting was held with Mrs. George W. Moore presiding at which annual reports were read and election of officers was held. The slate of officers presented for nomination at the November meeting was accepted as elected with Mrs. Raymond E. Craft heading the list as president.

Other officers elected were:

Officers for 1941
First vice-president, Mrs. George W. Moore; second vice-president, Mrs. Edward B. Loughran; third vice-president, Miss Mary McGill; fourth vice-president, Mrs. Sam Mann; fifth vice-president, Mrs. Philip Foster; recording secretary, Mrs. Robert F. Moseley, Jr.; corresponding secretary, Mrs. John Olivet; treasurer, Mrs. Frank Egan.

As a token of the appreciation of the members of the auxiliary Mrs. Moore was presented with a Rosary upon relinquishing her office. An interesting program of music and readings was given following the business meeting by Mrs. Raymond R. Gross and Mrs. Thomas W. Reynolds. Mrs. Gross sang, "The Little House," by Spross; "Little Boy Love" by Sanderson, and "Lady Moon" by Edwards. She was accompanied by Miss Edna Merrihew.

Mrs. Reynolds gave four readings, "The Holy City," "He Put Him Off Alright," "Our Flag" and "On the Train."

A trio from Paul Purcell's orchestra provided a musical background to the tea hour during which the table was presided over by Mrs. James R. Higley, Mrs. Edward B. Loughran, Mrs. Fred Voss and Mrs. Charles J. Mullen.

Mrs. William S. Bush and Mrs. Francis E. O'Connor, who were in charge of the tea arrangements were assisted in serving by the Misses Marjorie Garland, Ann Netter, Marie Flynn, Babette Forst, Rose Abernethy and Mary Collins, members of the Junior Auxiliary.

The annual report of the secretary, Mrs. J. Schuyler Schonger follows:

Secretary's Report
The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Benedictine Hospital is pleased to present a report of the work accomplished since the last annual meeting which was held at the Nurses' Home, December 6th, 1939. President, Mrs. Joseph Garland, presiding.

Officers served during the year 1940: President, Mrs. George Moore; first vice-president, Mrs. Joseph Garland; second vice-president, Mrs. James Higley; third vice-president, Mrs. Edward Loughran; fourth vice-president, Mrs. Mary McGill; fifth vice-president, Mrs. Philip Foster; recording secretary, Mrs. Schuyler Schonger; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Robert Moseley; treasurer, Miss Mary Campbell.

The year that has just passed has been a most successful one both socially and financially under the excellent leadership of Mrs. George Moore and her efficient staff of officers.

With the beginning of another year the auxiliary extends a cordial invitation to our friends to meet with us the first Wednesday of each month.

The first activity of the year was the decoration of the hospital for Christmas and much credit may be given to all who helped in this work which gives so much pleasure and good cheer to all at the hospital during the Christmas season.

The New Year tea dance of the Junior Auxiliary was, as always, an outstanding social success being one of the pleasant memories of the holiday season.

Our annual Charity Ball was as usual one of the prominent social affairs of the year and due to the untiring efforts of Mrs. Moore and her efficient committee it was again a great financial success.

Hospital Day on May 12, a national celebration, was a success in every way. The general public were invited to inspect the hospital and many took advantage of this opportunity. The visitors were cordially welcomed by the Sisters and members of the auxiliary and delicious refreshments were served.

In September the graduating nurses were entertained at luncheon at the Stuyvesant Hotel and each received a small personal gift from the auxiliary. The auxiliary also contributed $100 to the Sister Aloysia Scholarship Fund of $300 given to the graduate nurse having highest average in her class.

The treasurer's report shows a balance of $165.06 to December 1, 1940.

We wish to express our sincere thanks to each committee and its chairman and to all in the community who in any way have helped to make this year such a successful one.

The auxiliary also sincerely appreciates the cooperation of the newspapers and the program director of Station WKNY for their generosity in allotting to us so much space and time for splendid publicity.

Our annual meeting, election of officers and tea is being held this afternoon, Mrs. William Bush and Mrs. Francis E. O'Connor are our hostesses.

Respectfully submitted,

(Signed) Marie Louise Schonger

Sister Berenice, superintendent of the hospital, brought a short message to the assembled members and guests. Her remarks follow:

Sister Berenice's Message

Your presence here today is indeed a true indication of your loyal and continued interest in the growth and development of our hospital. You have all at one time or another given of your time and effort and have also helped financially in sponsoring the many social affairs of the auxiliary. You have been messengers of good will, fostering among the public a better understanding and appreciation of the service and needs of our hospital. All this has been very helpful because hospitals today have taken a very vital place in the social life of the community.

Reports of the past year show a very active year under the able leadership of our retiring president, Mrs. George Moore.

Good work always goes forward when there are faithful and willing hearts and hands to accomplish it. Last year Mrs. Moore, our retiring president, accepted her office with much courage and enthusiasm and has received the wholehearted support of the officers and members of the auxiliary. Immediately Mrs. Moore endeavored to increase the membership and through her efforts 67 new members were secured.

The Easter Monday Ball was outstanding in every way due to the splendid teamwork and united efforts of the auxiliary members. The interest and cooperation of all brought forth splendid results that gave a great deal of pleasure and satisfaction to all who helped in making the ball a huge success. Many new patrons were secured.

Please Him With Hand Knit Sweater

Household Arts by Alice Brooks

Practical Sweater and Socks Easy to Knit

Pattern 6614

Strictly masculine and sure to please is this sleeveless sweater with its matching socks in Cashmere Sports Yarns! So easy to knit, it's sure medium and large sizes; socks in any size desired; illustrations of them and stitches; materials needed.

To obtain this pattern send ten cents in coin to the Kingston Daily Freeman, Household Arts Dept., 259 W. 14th street, New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS and PATTERN NUMBER.

This year. The auxiliary was also very fortunate in obtaining splendid publicity from the local press. Of great assistance to the ball was the very fine radio discourse in which Honorable John M. Cashin gave a detailed sketch of the various departments of the hospital and enumerated some of its needs. This was very enlightening and particularly helpful since the message was carried into the homes of the community, giving them a more thorough knowledge of hospital service. Through the medium of the radio the public was also kept informed of the program of the ball. For this splendid radio service we are indebted to John R. McKenna of station WKNY.

Foremost among the other interests of the auxiliary is our school of nursing. A luncheon was given this year as usual for the graduating class. The auxiliary also contributed one hundred dollars toward the Sister Aloysia Scholarship Fund.

At Christmas the trimming and arranging of trees and other decorations throughout the house by the members of the auxiliary added to the holiday atmosphere. The hospital day program was repeated this year. The public was invited and members of the Ladies' Auxiliary served as hostesses.

Through the efforts of Mrs. Moore a number of small card parties were sponsored by various members of the auxiliary.

The purchasing and publicity committees have served well. The sewing committees have furnished us with many articles during the past year. This is a useful contribution and one that is needed constantly. Sewing was also accomplished by the students of the Needle Trade Class of the High School. The returned articles have been well made and show perfect workmanship on the part of the pupils and excellent supervision. We feel that this is a most worthwhile project and that the experience and knowledge acquired by the pupils will be an asset to them in later life.

The auxiliary has lost a very faithful member in the passing of Mrs. C. P. Gannon, who always responded to our requests, particularly at the time of our annual Easter Monday balls. Mrs. Sabina Ross, Mrs. Gannon's mother, who died a short time ago was also a member of the auxiliary. May their souls rest in peace.

We regret the long illness of Mrs. Mark O'Meara, her faithful attendance has been missed at the auxiliary meetings.

The annual tea of the auxiliary is always looked forward to with much pleasure. The interesting program and beautiful setting of today's affair were arranged by Mrs. William Bush and Mrs. Francis O'Connor.

With courage and enthusiasm our junior auxiliary are going forward with plans for their annual tea which will be held on January first in the Governor Clinton Hotel. We trust they will be encouraged by the many friends of the hospital in their endeavor to be of assistance to our cause.

We wish to acknowledge with much gratitude the splendid response and support given to auxiliary members each year by the citizens and merchants of Kingston and vicinity.

Today we are installing a new president, Mrs. Raymond Craft. We believe that the splendid accomplishments of the past year under the leadership of our retiring president, Mrs. George Moore and the officers who preceded her, should encourage and assure our worthy president-elect of the fullest support of each auxiliary member for the coming year.

The management of the Benedictine Hospital fully appreciates the splendid support it received from the loyal members of the Ladies' Auxiliary who year after year contribute their time, energy and means to assist the hospital in its works of mercy.

The sad condition of the world today is a challenge for generous giving and whole hearted support for the continuance of service of the voluntary hospital. This response is very vital if the Christian institutions of America are to serve the sick poor as fully and generously as they have in the past.

MARKING SILVER GIVEN TO BRIDE BY HER FAMILY WITH CREST OF THE FAMILY OF THE GROOM

Her Initials Below Crest Completely Wrong, Emily Post Tells Bride Who Has Unusual Problem

Even here in America where comparatively few people concern themselves with heraldic bearings, the crest of the Spelvin family engraved on an object proclaims just as definitely that the object is the property of one whose name is Spelvin as it would if Spelvin were written in full. This leads to the question of marking the silver given to a bride by her family with the crest of the family of the groom. The bride describing the situation, says:

"My family would like to give me all my flat silver for a wedding present. But the fact that we want to mark it with my fiancé's family crest rather complicates things. We both think the crest would be more effective than my initials. (My family has no crest.) But my fiancé also thinks it unfair to my parents to take their silver and then put his family's device on it because, as he says, this would give the impression that my family had given it to him—or else that his family had given it to us. Which brings me to another fact, that his family would also like to give us the silver marked with their crest. However, my family has always intended to give this silver and I think they would be disappointed if they couldn't. It's all rather confusing, and I wondered whether by adding my own three future initials underneath the crest it would help the situation?"

In addition to what I have already answered, let me say your fiancé is right. Moreover, your initials underneath his crest would be completely wrong since the property of a woman is never correctly marked with a crest but only with a miserably unattractive "lozenge" contrived from the device on her husband's shield. She can of course set her table with his silver, write on his paper and drive in a town car that has his crest on it. It is also proper, if she has footmen, to have his crest on the buttons of their liveries, but they are all for this reason in his name.

It seems to me, therefore, that it will be simplest to let his family give you the silver. Or if your family is going to be really upset by not being able to give this to you, then why not have it given to you without marking and have it marked immediately after the wedding? In other words, having it marked when your husband's name is yours will, so far as American custom is concerned, be considered proper. Not one in thousands will even know that the marking indicates it is rightfully your husband's. And after all, what difference does it make to which of you it belongs?

Dear Mrs. Post: When the maid

passes sugar and cream on a serving tray, is one supposed to lift off the sugar bowl to help oneself or help oneself from where the bowl stands on the tray?

Answer: One helps oneself from the bowl left on the tray.

A Quickly Made Gift—Stunning Candle Holders

Make a Pair—from Tin Cans!

A lovely flower-petal candle holder you can make easily from tin cans and paint in white and blue-green. A pair is a welcome gift and you'll want to make a pair to keep, too!

For each candle holder use two cans—one about four inches high and five inches in diameter, the other about 4½ inches high.

With large shears cut first can down about ¼ inch and then, starting 1½ inches from each side of its seam, divide can into parts about one inch wide. Next cut down each division as the diagram shows and cut ends into petal-like points.

The pretty flower decoration you cut with the help of a pattern from your second tin can, after flattening it.

Now to paint—the outside of the can with flat white, the inside with blue-green. The leaves are blue-green, the flowers are white, the large one with a center of red. When dry, curve petals gracefully. Use wire to tie flower to candle holder, threading through tiny holes pricked in each.

For complete directions for this candle holder, other 'stunning' items, see our 32-page booklet. Tells how to make easily cigarette boxes, tea tiles, footstools, 24 items in all—for gifts or for your home.

Send 10c in coin for your copy of DECORATIVE AND USEFUL OBJECTS EVERYONE CAN MAKE to Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Service, 635 Sixth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

MY TWO HUSBANDS ... AND WHY THEY BOTH LIKE ME!

1. MY LIP-SMACKING HUSBAND

Such a fiend about food! Wants e-v-e-r-y meal to taste perfect . . . or else!

Well, it's no secret why this husband likes me! I always serve wonderful-tasting, creamy-smooth GOOD LUCK Margarine. Its marvelous country flavor is so natural . . . so wholly natural. And its freshness is unconditionally guaranteed. Only GOOD LUCK—no other margarine, no other spread, no matter what the price—is "Dated for Freshness"!

And how he goes for the biscuits and cakes and pies I bake with GOOD LUCK . . . well! To say he likes them . . . and me . . . is putting it mildly!

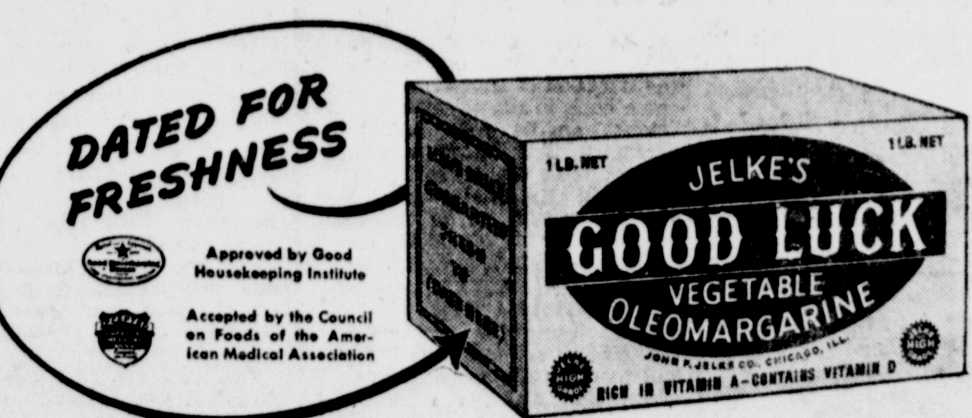

2. MY BUDGET-MINDED HUSBAND

One-and-the-same, to be sure . . . but such a grouch about bills! Eyes every cent!

This husband likes me too . . . and no wonder! He's delighted at the money I save on each pound of GOOD LUCK! And he's especially pleased when I remind him that GOOD LUCK, at low cost assures him and the children all the goodness, all the food-essentials that we'd get in a much higher priced spread!

You see, grand-tasting GOOD LUCK is naturally abundant in food-value . . . and you get added healthfulness from GOOD LUCK's Vitamin A.

Middies-Maroon Set for DUSO Opener on Friday Night

Local Cagers Seek 6th Straight Title; Middies Are Strong

Maroon Team Out to Start New Home Streak; Odds Will Favor Middletown Over Kingston Quintet

The quintet which may be the surprise of the 1940-41 DUSO Basketball League, Kingston High School, opens its home season and also league competition Friday night at the municipal auditorium against Middletown.

For these two teams it will be just a matter of taking up where they left off last season. Playing in Middletown last year (the beginning of 1940), Kingston won its fifth DUSO championship by winning 23 to 17.

However, Friday's contest will be different in at least one respect. Only two of Kingston's starting players tomorrow are left from the last season's winning machine. Joe Benjamin and Bill Strubel will be left to carry the load and from early viewpoints, they'll do just that.

Possible Starters
Although nothing is definite as far as G. Warren Kias's starting array is concerned, with the exception of the two guards, a possible starting team will see Bill Ball and Jack Kelleher at forwards; Dick McConnell, center; and Strubel and Benjamin in the backcourt. "Rip" Mathers, Huck Herrick and Rod Sagendorf may break into the starting lineup by game time.

The Middletown team, never a winner of the coveted DUSO League crown, may see some light this season with a healthy looking squad ready for full-time duty on the court. The Middies pressed Kingston last year and may do the same again.

Despite the loss of Bob MacVittie, Jimmy Wallace and Al Whitaker, the Middies will present a strong club in Kingston Friday night. Coach Mac Wagner has quite a few veterans returning and the extra experience may turn the trick in beating the mighty Kingston combine.

Due to a new ruling this season's DUSO play will be divided into two halves. A. H. Naylor, president of the league, has announced that the winners of either half will meet at the end of the season to determine the winner of the circuit.

Friday's main feature will start at 8 o'clock with a preliminary at 7 o'clock. The Maroon Jayvees will meet another junior outfit of the city.

Mel Hein Again Chosen as Best In Pro Football

Redskins Place Three Men on 'Dream Team'; Two by Giants, Dodgers; Baugh Favorite

Four state professional football players have been named on the team of 1940. They are the New York Giants' Mel Hein, center; Jim Boole, end; Ace Parker of Brooklyn, quarterback; and Bruiser Kinard, tackle.

The Washington Redskins, champs of the Eastern Division, placed three men on the "dream team"—Barber, tackle; Slivinski, guard; and Sammy Baugh, left-half. The winning Chicago Bears had Danny Fortmann, guard.

Besides the colorful Jim Poole of the Polo Grounds team, Don Hutson, ace end of the Green Bay Packers, was chosen for the flack-snatchers in the loop.

Naturally, the center pick went to Mel Hein, the Giants' ace man in the middle. Just the other day Mel was given a "day" at the Polo Grounds for his grand performance in the pro field. His treatment on the gridiron is rewarded with another selection on the first team.

The complete team is as follows: Ends, Hutson, Green Bay Packers; Jim Poole, Giants; tackles, Barber, Washington, Kinard, Dodgers; guards, Fortmann, Bears, Slivinski, Washington, Mel Hein; center, Gaints. In the backfield, Ace Parker, Brooklyn, at quarter; Sammy Baugh, Washington, and Whizzer White, Detroit, halfbacks; Johnny Drake, Cleveland Rams, fullback.

Armstrong Loses In Diamond Belt Boxing Tourney

Hod Docket Gets Nod Over Local Fighter in Three Rounds; Albright Gets at Scene Too Late

In the fifth annual Diamond Belt boxing tournament held in the Capitol Arena in Albany Wednesday night Monk Armstrong, local favorite, lost to Hod Docket of Glens Falls in a three-rounder.

Owing to bad road conditions Frankie Albright, another local ringman, failed to see action in last night's competition as he arrived too late. Both Albright and Armstrong, however, will be part of the boxing card which will be presented at the municipal auditorium Monday evening, December 16, under the auspices of the American Legion. Plans are now under way to make this card one of the best.

In the Armstrong-Docket go, the Glens Falls fighter rushed out at Monk and kept on battling for the duration of that session. Monk came back in the second and had Docket on the ropes with heavy barrages. The more aggressive Docket took the three round decision in the final round. Armstrong proved to be the better puncher but his opponent hooked in with the deciding blows.

Next week the Baptists play the league-leading Trinity Lutheran team at the Baptist hall.

Reds Get Two From Cubs For Infielder Bill Meyers

Jim Gleason and Mattick Go to Champs; Boston, White Sox Near Success in Deal

By ROMNEY WHEELER

Atlanta, Dec. 5 (AP)—The man with the money bags is in town, and if pennants can be purchased, Brooklyn's dolly Dodgers will be in the world series next fall.

Larry MacPhail, the gent who likes to talk in six figures, has this 39th convention of the minor leagues in a Santa Claus mood. And money talks.

Yesterday the Dodgers tossed Catcher Gus Mancuso, a rookie pitcher and a wad of cash estimated at from $65,000 to $75,000 on the line in exchange for the St. Louis Cardinals young catcher, Mickey Owen.

Today the man with pennant fever was in a huddle with the Pittsburgh Pirates, dickering for Outfielder Debs Garms and willing to be talked to about anything else that can put the Dodgers ahead of the league.

MacPhail's deals now have cost the Brooklyn bankroll better than $300,000—still a good way behind Boston's "Angel" Tom Yawkey, but promising enough to make the National League feel Christmasy.

But where Yawkey tried unsuccessfully to buy a pennant-winner with gold-plated names, MacPhail is putting his cash on the line chiefly for young talent. With exception of Veteran Outfielder Joe Medwick, acquired from the Cardinals for $150,000, his deals have gambled on the future—$100,000 for the Phillies' pitcher, Kirby Higbe and yesterday's Mickey Owen buy.

The minors headed into the second day of their convention, but the majors still held baseball's attention with lineup—juggling sales and trades.

Landis Speaks Tonight

To the Cincinnati Reds' swap of Shortstop Billy Myers to the Chicago Cubs for Outfielder Jim Gleason, Shortstop Bobby Mattick and an undesignated player was added word of two other negotiations.

Johnny Knolla Is Best Gridiron Ground Gainer

Creighton Ace Beat Tom Harmon by 74 Points; Michigan Star Tops in Average Yards

figures from Ohio State, scene of Harmon's last contest, shrunk 22 yards from his total.

Nobody, however, has approached Marmon for average yards gained per game, either this year or last. His 1939 average was 169.5; his 1940 average 168.3. He was credited with 1,356 yards last year.

Billy Sewell of Washington State College, who won 1940 forward passing honors with 86 completions, totaled 1,333 yards for the season to finish third in total offense. Paul Christian of Missouri, eighth last year, finished fourth.

Al Ghesquiere of Detroit kept his rushing lead for 1940 with 957 yards gained in 146 attempts. Where through 1939 only two players—Harmon and Whizzer White of Colorado in 1937—had turned in an average of better than 100 yards per game rushing in the bureau's records, this year there are three among the first five rushers who better that mark, and two of them are from Michigan.

Ghesquiere averaged 106.3; Harmon 105.5; and Harmon's teammate, Bob Westfall, 100.9.

Owen Price of Texas Mines, leader for six weeks among the punters, wound up on top with the high 48 yard average for 30 punts in nine games.

Big Storehouse Found in Ocean

Essential Materials Needed By Man Are Produced In Abundance.

LA JOLLA, CALIF.—A storehouse of natural riches, probably great enough to supply all mankind with a perpetual abundance of most of the essential raw materials, has been found by scientists.

It occupies a large part—more than 330,000,000 cubic miles—of the earth's outer layer.

Despite its size, its many riches were discovered one by one. The reports of many scientists, when put together, are just now beginning to disclose its almost fantastic potentialities.

It is such a prolific producer, the scientists say, that it could replenish most of its resources faster than humanity could possibly use them, provided the consumers avoided waste and practiced intelligent conservation.

It is the world's greatest reservoir of life, and at the same time the largest graveyard on earth.

It can foster some living things, the experts state, at the rate of perhaps 10,000 generations a year.

It is the sea.

Stocked With Food.

Reports of numerous oceanographers are beginning to show that the seas are heavily stocked with food, medicine, the makings of petroleum, with iron and an array of other minerals, and even the things needed to produce dynamite, anti-knock gasoline and garden vegetables.

Most of this wealth is due to the activities of countless billions of tiny plants and animals, working throughout the ages with the help of sun, tide, current and other natural forces.

The story of these findings lies in the records of the University of California's Scripps institution of oceanography, through which much of the work was done.

The discoveries have led some experts to conclude that the sea is more productive per unit of surface area than the land. And there are nearly three times as much of ocean surface as there is of terra firma.

But no way has been found to harvest the total annual crop from any given sea area. Ocean crops—fish, mammals and plants—migrate or are moved by ocean currents, complicating the harvesting.

A 10,000-generation crop develops one generation every 49 minutes.

Life-Promoting Power.

Such productivity, says Dr. Claude E. ZoBell, Scripps micro-biologist, is due to the matchless life-promoting power of the oceans and because sea water and even the ooze at the bottom have been teeming with bacteria since the beginning of life.

The seas, says Dr. ZoBell, produce five times as many animal species, exclusive of insects, as live on land, and several thousand plant species.

Ocean temperature is more even than continental, which means sea plants and animals never suffer from extremes of heat or cold. Drought is unknown. And the water is heavily "spiked" with minerals and other food materials.

"Moreover," Dr. ZoBell adds, "only the top few feet of soil produce plant and animal life, but the sea produces down to the limit of sunlight penetration, 200 to 600 feet."

"Finally, while the land might yield five to ten useful crops, the sea could produce possibly 10,000 generations of life-promoting bacteria, maybe 100 generations among various classes of slightly larger organisms, and still other things at undetermined speed.

"Crops on land, at any one time, are on the average larger than crops in the same area of ocean, but we do not know how many crops of all kinds the ocean produces in a year."

Trousers Furnished Gold To Make Souvenir Rings

There is a story told about Lord ("Jacky") Fisher—England's greatest sailor since Nelson—to the effect that he once appeared at the court of Edward VII wearing some disgracefully old clothes.

"Really, Fisher," said King Edward, "that is a very old suit you are wearing."

"Yes, sir," came the instant reply, "but you've always told me that nothing really matters but the cut."

Which lends point to a story told by George Arliss (in "My Ten Years in the Studios"). Here it is:

"Dame Madge Kendal (famous actress of bygone days) gave me a gold ring made out of Lord Fisher's trousers; and gave Flo (Mrs. Arliss) one too; also made out of Lord Fisher's trousers. The 't' of Lord Fisher's trousers, which was Lord Fisher's, carried with it a great deal of gold braid. This gold braid does not descend from trousers to trousers. The new trousers do not inherit the braid of their predecessors. When a First Sea Lord has worn out his trousers, he apparently casts them off like an old glove—braid and all."

"Dame Madge was a very observant and original woman. Having discovered that gold braid of this period contained a great deal of pure gold, she followed the matter up until she got Lord Fisher's discarded glory, took the braid to an old-established gold refiner's, which still carries on business opposite the Garrick club (London), and had the gold extracted and made into gold rings as souvenirs of her old friend Lord Fisher."

Twenty-four prisoners in Atlanta federal penitentiary have enrolled in a correspondence course offered by the University of Oklahoma.

Canned Tomatoes Keep Vitamin 'A' for Years

Research nutritionists at Iowa State college have found that canned tomatoes stored at room temperature as long as three and four years show no loss of vitamin A.

In the past, homemakers usually have canned only enough tomatoes for a year's use, because it was believed that all canned goods lost some of their nutritive value over a period of time.

Experiment was conducted by Dr. Pearl P. Swanson, Dr. P. Mabel Nelson and Dr. Gladys Stevenson, who is now at the University of California. Results were reported in the Farm Science Reporter, college quarterly, just released.

The research was done on tomatoes only. Gains of 166 white rats were found to be unaffected by variation in length of time tomatoes had been canned.

Tomatoes may provide a large part of the daily requirements of vitamin A, the nutritionists stated. One serving of canned tomatoes contains as much of the vitamin as one and one-half pats of butter.

Faulty Gutters

Leaky and corroded gutters and downspouts often cause serious building damage. They may result in ruined and unsightly walls and ceilings as well as cause considerable deterioration of exterior materials. Experienced workmen can easily and quickly repair or install new flashing over door and window openings and roof intersections, around the chimney, pipe vents and other openings and projections. At the same time they can clean gutters and downspouts of dirt and litter and repair them or install new ones if necessary. Further deterioration of metals which are subject to corrosion may be retarded by the use of suitable paint.

Cultivate Most Roses Here

People in the United States cultivate more roses than any other country in the world, but our once famous American Beauty rose is practically extinct today, according to Francis W. Ruzicka, president of the National Rose Growers of America. Its place has been taken by the Better Times rose, introduced six years ago. Today when you buy a so-called American Beauty, the chances are it is really a Better Times. Yellow roses are hardest to produce. Bees and bugs, greatest pollinating agents, always prefer pink roses; so when roses go pink, you know they have gone wild. New Jersey grows enough roses to strew the Transcontinental Highway end to end, from Trenton to Pasadena. White roses cost more in June and September and are almost unsalable through the rest of the year. The Red Rose Inn, near West Grove, Pa., has paid its rent with roses instead of money for more than 200 years.

State Guard Meeting

There will be a short formation this evening of members of the State Guard at the armory. All members are to be in attendance and each member may bring a friend. The formation will be at 8 o'clock.

Production of pig iron in Canada during September amounted to 105,020 tons, marking the seventh time in the history of the industry that the 100,000 ton level was exceeded.

Engineers Won't Meet

John D. Groves of West Hurley, secretary of the Ulster County Chapter of Professional Engineers, announced this morning that the dinner meeting which was to have been held this evening at the Hotel Stuyvesant has been postponed until further notice.

Greenland was named by the Norwegian navigator, Eric the Red.

Will Hold Meeting

Wiltwyck Hose Company, No. 1, will hold a regular meeting this evening. The company will host to the members of the Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association at the January meeting to be held in this city, and arrangements for the affair will be made at the meeting this evening. Committees will be appointed and every member is urged to be present.
